Acknowledgement

It is said that research is a systematic activity that is directed toward discovery and the development of an organised body of knowledge. For me, to go through this process of discovery and development of knowledge would not have been possible, but for my guide, Dr. (Mrs) Smriti Swarup, Professor and Head, Centre of Special Education, S.N.D.T. Women's University. Her excellent guidance and supervision, unflinching support, active cooperation, and encouragement fill me with a sense of deep indebtedness and gratitude.

I am thankful to the students of the B.Ed (Spl. Edu.) courses, and the children with mental retardation who participated in this study.

Special thanks to the Heads of B.Ed Courses and Principals of the Special Schools where this study was conducted.

I am grateful to Mrs. Margaret Walker, Director, Makaton Vocabulary Development Project, U.K., for allowing me to use the Makaton Vocabulary Language Programme as a tool in this research, and providing the relevant documents pertaining to it.

I thank the trustees of Makaton India for providing the resource material on the Makaton Vocabulary (Indian Version).

I express my gratitude to Dr. Ramani, Director, National Council for Software Technology, who granted me a free access to the Internet facility in his institute for the purpose of this study.

I am also grateful to the library staff at British Council Library, U.S.I.S. Library, SNDT University Library, Juhu and Churchgate for their support, and all those who directly or indirectly helped in this investigation.

Last, but not the least, my heartfelt thanks to my loving family - my husband, Shanker, my children, Shinjini and Simant - who bore the brunt of my preoccupations, anxiety, and absence from home, with fortitude and indulgence.
