ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

I owe a deep felt sense of gratitude and admiration to all those working children whom I interacted with, who, although tired after their hard day’s work and initial hesitation, co-operated and talked to me and helped me to understand their issues, problems, hopes, dreams and aspirations. They talked about their working and living conditions and the difficulties they face, some of which have become a regular part of their lives. Spending time with these children enabled me to appreciate their resilience and upbeat spirit which survived all the hardships that life on the mean streets could throw up and faced each new day afresh and with unbeaten hope.

I take this opportunity to express my sincere gratitude and debt to my guide Dr. S.K.G. Sundaram, Department of Economics, S.N.D.T. Women’s University, Churchgate, Mumbai, whose constant encouragement, invaluable inputs, timely advise and keen interest have enabled me to complete my thesis in time.

My sincere thanks are also due to all those writers and publishers whose works I have consulted in compiling the data presented. I also wish to thank the librarians of the various libraries I visited during the course of my research. I would particularly like to thank Miss S. Patil – Maharashtra Institute of Labour Studies, Mrs. G. Kulkarni - Ambekar Institute of Labour Studies, Mr. R. T. Randeria – International Institute of Population Studies, Miss Vanita Maratt - Youth for Unity and Voluntary Action (YUVA), Mrs. R. Laxmi - Child Relief and You (CRY) and the staff of the Centre for Education and Documentation; for the help they extended to me whenever required.
I wish to express my appreciation to the Principals of the night schools for giving me the permission to talk to the working children studying there. I am thankful to the activists of various Non Government Organisations working for the welfare of children for their co-operation. Special thanks to Ms. Alpa Vora, Mr. Suresh Rao and Ms. Archana Shrivastav - YUVA, Ms. Bina Sheth - Door-Step School, Ms. Malathi Pillai - UNICEF, Mr. Siraj Momin - Apnalaya and Ms. Tejashree - Support.

I also had the opportunity to interact with some of the parents and employers of child labourers. Discussions were also held with Dr. S. T. Sawant, Director and Prof. (Mrs.) A. A. Maduskar, Lecturer, Labour Welfare - Maharashtra Institute of Labour Studies, Mrs. Geeta More, Community Development, Project Co-ordinator - MCGB, Mrs. Kalpana Chitre and Mrs. Mahajan, Statistical section - MCGB, Mr. R. R. Raval, Labour Inspector - MCGB, Mr. B. K. Mukadam, Tehsildar and Mrs. V. M. Bhandarkar, Freedom Fighter section - Collector of Mumbai city, Mrs. A. P. Joshi, Deputy Commissioner of Labour, Mrs. V. Kulkarni and Mr. Manohar Vatere, Bombay city section - Commissioner of Labour, Mr. Raja Kulkarni - Secretary of Indian National Trade Union Congress, Mr. V.C. Nemade, Chief Probation Officer - Observation Home, Umerkhadi, This helped me in understanding the issue of child labour in a broader perspective. I thank them all.

I am thankful to the management, Principal Q. A. Saeed, Prof. (Mrs.) S. Joseph, Head, Department of Economics, my colleague Prof. (Mrs.) S. Dalal, librarian Dr. M. A. Patel and assistant librarian Mrs. A. A. Golwala of Burhani College of Commerce and Arts, for their co-operation throughout the duration of this work.
I would fail in my duty if I do not express gratitude to my parents Mr. and Mrs. Disawala for their blessings, my sister Mrs. Shamima Yunus Millwala, my brothers Ali Asgar, Shabbir and Mohamadi and all my family members for encouraging me in my research work. I am extremely grateful to my husband, Professor Saifuddin S. Rangwala and my sons, Abbas and Shabbir, for their overwhelming support, tolerance and consideration, without which this work would not have seen the light of the day.

My thanks are due to the teaching faculty, especially Dr. (Mrs.) H.M.Wadia, Librarian Miss Harsha Parekh and the administrative staff of the S.N.D.T. Women’s University, for their generous help from time to time. Finally many thanks to Mr. Ayaz S. Zanzeria for helping me in printing this thesis.
