Acknowledgement

This work could not have been successfully completed without the generous assistance, support and encouragement of a number of individuals of whom I am deeply indebted.

First and foremost, I owe a debt of gratitude to my supervisor and mentor Dr. T.K. Bamon for her invaluable input and her efforts in enriching my knowledge of the subject. This research study would not be possible without her scholarly directions, suggestions as well as her encouragement.

I am grateful to Dr.K.C.Baral, Director of the English and Foreign Languages University, Shillong Campus for his guidance, support and patience.

I would especially like to extend my sincere gratitude to the English teachers, teacher trainees and the English teacher trainers of the St.Mary's College of Teacher Education, College of Teacher Education (PGT), School of Education, IGNOU, and the English and Foreign Languages University (EFLU), Shillong, who have been instrumental in providing me with the needful data for my work. I am also grateful to the Principals who permitted me to collect data at their colleges.

I owe special thanks to Ms.B.Buam, senior teacher educator in the College of Teacher Education (PGT), Shillong, for her time, invaluable advice and suggestions for improvement in the preparation of the questionnaire.

I am thankful to Dr.Goel, senior Statistician, NEHU, Shillong, for his expert assistance in the statistical analysis of this research study, and to Ms.Theresa, Librarian, and the administrative staff of EFLU for their assistance.

I appreciate the generous support and encouragement of Dr.G.C.Kharkongor and Rev. E.H. Kharkongor of the Martin Luther Christian University, Shillong, throughout the process of this research study.

I also owe my gratitude to my colleagues and friends who have kindly extended their help and shared keen interest in the presentation of this thesis.

Finally, I am grateful to my parents and teachers for the wealth of knowledge and freedom that they have entrusted in me.
