ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

Coming to the end of a research work is like coming to the end of an exciting, if exhausting, journey. In the pathway I met many people and those interactions made lot of changes in my view and knowledge level. I am indebted to all people I met in this trajectory, towards fulfilment of my degree.

I would like to thank my research guide Dr. Shubhada Maitra, who had been a source of encouragement for me to understand more and work harder. She gave me all freedom to frame my work. Thank you Ma'am, for all the support given and also for never once doubting my sincerity and capability and also for installing confidence in me. I am glad I wrote all those drafts. You urged me to polish, polish and repolish the chapters!

Being my DAC member Prof. Surinder Jaswal always listened and encouraged me. The meetings with her were always motivating and her empathetic understanding is commendable. The suggestions she gave were significant to my thesis work. Thank you ma'am for being a support during my difficult times. I would like to express my deepest gratitude to Prof Lakshmi Lingam, not only as a DAC member but also as the Dean in Research and Development. She took initiative and supported to revive my ICMR fellowship after its breakage in the fourth year. She was always available and approachable. Her feedback on the topic was also encouraging and valuable.

A very special thanks to Prof. Jayaram for giving time for discussions and listening to me. His classes on social theories as well as conversations with him not only helped in gaining knowledge but also influenced my views and perceptions. Each interaction with him moulded me as a researcher and made me more humane.

My deepest gratitude to my friends Shajahan, Mathew George, Sunil, Anand and Irshad. Through the discussions with them I was able to sharpen and clarify my ideas. Thankfully remembering Mathew, with whom I discussed my work since research proposal onwards, and finally he came as the discussant for my synopsis presentation. His comments really enriched my thesis. I am grateful to Dr. Anil Sutar for his support and encouragement.

My friends encouraged me to work tirelessly and they shared the burden of my work at various points of time and I extend my gratitude toward them. Special thanks to all my fellow researchers and friends for being with me, especially Susan Mathew, Benny, Mamtha, Naveen, Sohini, Lavanya, Nadira, Ketoki, Shahina, Jennifer, Lata, Arpita, Swetha, Aswini, Tony, Meghali, Sayani, Manju, Nagesh, Kamelesh, Secky, Hema, Susan, Shalila, Krishna, Raju, Jomet, Nikhil and Jaleel. I do not know how to thank Chitra, Divya, Preetha and Premlatha; Divya for being with me throughout as a big support at crucial moments. She has done the editing work of the thesis. Chitra being my friend, who helped me to concentrate on work by providing food always on my table and she also found time for reading and editing my work. Thanks to Premlatha, who did all the formatting work for the thesis. A big special thanks to Preetha for the comments after reading my entire thesis. Specially remembering Shahana for supporting me in reference work and Deepak for formatting.

My gratitude to the ICMR, for the fellowship throughout the five years; it was a valued support for my work. Dr. KK Singh deserve a special thanks for facilitating the fellowship and I thankfully remember Dr. Sandhya also.

The research study would not have been complete without the support of library staff at Sir Dorabji Tata Memorial library, TISS. The administrative staff in the doctoral student office, especially Purnima, Lakhsmi, Anil, Vidya, Medha and Lisa were constant sources of encouragement in the due course of study and steadily provided technical and administrative assistance.

Women, Men and children of Edamalakudy, my friends, how I wish I could publicly acknowledge my love and gratefulness towards you. I was accepted as one among you by providing food and a place to stay along with you. Thank you for enriching me with this experience and helping me change into a more humane and humble person.

My dear parents, thank you for being such a great source of strength in my life and for putting up with my prolonged absence from home. Without their support I could not have imagined this work being done. The gap of a mother in my children's life was properly addressed by them. Achu and Kunjan filled my life with love and laughter. They have contributed to this work through a thousand little sacrifices that cannot be weighed on adult scales.

Baiju, kept the home fires burning. His general craftsmanship and unconditional support made this a better work and me a better person. Thank you Baiju for never complaining about being alone there.

Thankfully remembering Health Inspector Ravichandran for connecting me with the people of Edamalakudy and the support extended through out the study period.

My brothers specially Rijosh and also our large extended family, who keeps my life warm and cosy, have always been proud supporters of my work. Remembering you all Kuttan, Bijichechi, Jisha, Kuyya, Unni, Vava, Nidhin, Sani, Jilju, Jithu, Anita, Reshmi, Biju and Sibichayan. A sincere thanks to Kaladiyamma and Appachan for always being understanding and supportive.

Renil, I don't know how many times I attempted writing these lines in this page. Whenever I start it, my eyes fill with tears and I could never complete it. The biggest gap I felt is your absence. You are the one with whom I used to share all my stories first. You motivated me to join for the PhD programme, supported all the way, and at the final time you are not with me. This work is a tribute to you!
