6. CONCLUSION

The outcome of the present study benefits in identifying the molecular mechanism behind the role of twist protein in breast cancer progression. The present study also identified the mode of action of quercetin with respect to a metastatic protein “Twist”. The outcome of the present study benefits in creating a new chemotherapy strategy for estrogen presenting breast cancer.