Acknowledgement

First and foremost I thank God Almighty who has been continuously showering upon me abundantly his boundless grace and mercy and who has helped me undertake this project and work it out and complete it on time.

I thank the Vice-Chancellor and the Registrar of Kalasalingam University for permitting me to work on this thesis and helping me in various ways in completing it.

My sincere thanks go to Dr. G. Manivannan, M.A., M. Phil., Ph. D., Head of the Department of English, Kalasalingam University, and my dear colleagues in the department and in the university for all the help they have rendered me and for their continued encouragement.

I owe my gratitude to my dear parents, sisters, brothers-in-law and the little children in the family whose continued support and prayers have been always a great source of inspiration to me.

I am profoundly indebted in a special sense to my guide and supervisor, Dr. S. Chellakumar Rose, M.A., M. Phil., Ph. D., Reader in English, Scott Christian College, Nagercoil for his “unremitting labours”, relentless and extensive discussions, spontaneous reactions, candid evaluations, deep, critical insights and inspiring explanations which have helped me grasp the existential vision of both Graham Greene and Arun Joshi in the proper perspective and understand their humanist interests which at times override their religious enthusiasm. All the words of thanks and acknowledgement will not be adequate enough to express the sincerity, meticulous care and concern with which he went through the entire thesis, pointed out corrections and suggested changes.

The original impetus to undertake this project came to me from my former Professor Dr. A. Rajadurai, M.A., M.Phil., M.Ed., Ph.D., Rtd. Prof. and H.O.D. of English, Scott Christian College, Nagercoil. It was he who discovered for me the remarkable similarity of experience beneath the obvious differences of the conceptual framework of Greene and Joshi. I am deeply indebted to him for his invaluable suggestions.

I thank all my former professors at the Scott Christian College who moulded my character and personality and made me what I am today. Many of them have retired from service now and some have gone away “seeking pastures anew”. May God bless them wherever they are.

T.G. Merly
