One normally registers for the Ph.D. programme with a lot of enthusiasm. Sustainability of the initial enthusiasm is an uphill task, as a lot of positive energy is required to keep the wheels moving up. The most powerful force that pushes the wheels in the upward direction is the Ph.D. supervisor. I consider myself extremely lucky and privileged to have eminent economist Prof. Dr. Vibhuti Patel, Former Head, PG Department of Economics, SNDT University, as my supervisor. Her academic expertise and the vast experience as an activist helped me immensely right from the conceptualisation of the research proposal. What I admired most in her is her humane approach towards her students. I am extremely grateful to her for everything that she did for me.

I would also like to thank Prof. Dr. Veena Devasthali, Head, Department of Economics, SNDT University. As a course coordinator of the Ph.D. course - work she helped in getting all the doubts clarified about the research methodology and made me do very useful assignments as part of the course work. She was also a great support in all the administrative matters. Prof. Dr. Ruby Oza and all the members of the Department of Economics always made me feel at home whenever I visited the Department. I am thankful to the entire Department of Economics of SNDT University for being very helpful and concerned. I also thank the support staff of the SNDT University. A special word of thanks is needed for the library staff of the three libraries – the Library of SNDT University, the Library of University of Mumbai and the Library of Ramnarain Ruia College. The staff of these libraries made my work easy by making available all my requirements very promptly.

I must put on record my thanks to all the students/parents/members of the households who not only very patiently answered the questionnaire but also gave valuable inputs. It was very gratifying to have a word of encouragement from the respondents during the survey.

Many of my friends, some teach in different colleges in Mumbai, some are office bearers of NGOs, helped me to locate the targeted households for my sample. Dr. Medha Tapiawala, Dr. Rohini Kelkar, Ms. Shubhangi Vartak, Ms. Medhavini Namjoshi are some prominent names in this list. I am grateful for their support and encouragement. I am also thankful to my colleagues and friends at Ramnarain Ruia college for giving me valuable suggestions. Names of Ms Vatsala Pai. Dr. Mohsina Mukadam and Dr. Sujata Suvarnapatki need to be mentioned in this regard. Special thanks to my friend, Dr. Sushama Paudwal for her guidance in various administrative and library related matters.

I am also grateful to the Principal of Ramnarain Ruia College for his support and encouragement. I must also thank the UGC for granting me fellowship under the Faculty Development Programme. The fellowship increased the ‘ease of doing’ research. A very sincere word of gratitude for my family members – my husband and daughter, for their patience, empathy and appreciation. Thanks to my brother and his family for always being my support system. This research work is dedicated to my parents whose role in my life cannot be described in words.
