BIBLIOGRAPHY

35. Kumar, A (2011), “Crm In Banking: Perspectives And Insights From Indian Rural Customers”

57. Pati A.P. (June 2010) explains that in India an array of financial institutions are operating in the area of rural financing. Among those institutions Regional Rural Banks (RRBs) are prominent. The idea was to provide efficient service to the rural sectors so that the rural economy could provide the necessary input to the overall economy.

64. Report of the Khusro Committee to review the Agricultural Credit System in India, RBI Publications, Mumbai.

76. Ravichandran and Alkhathlan (2009), Research Journal of Finance and Accounting, ISSN 2222-1697 (Paper) ISSN 2222-2847 (Online) Vol 2, No 6

80. Reddy A. Amarender (March 2006) examines the total factor productivity of RRBs. In this Banks located in economically developed as well as low banking density regions exhibited significantly higher productivity growth.

88. Statistical Tables Relating to Banks in India (various Issues), Reserve Bank of India, Mumbai.

92. Velayudham and Sankaramarayanan (1990) for a nuanced account of the concerns and debates on the RRB issue during the late 1980s.

