ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

The thesis would not have been in the present form without the sincere help, encouragement and co-operation of several individuals and institutions.

First and foremost, I owe a deep sense of gratitude to my supervisor, Dr. Mary Joseph, T., Faculty Member, School of Management Studies, for her valuable guidance and encouragement from the beginning to the completion of the research work.

I am greatly indebted to Dr. K.C. Sankaranarayanan, Professor and Head, Department of Applied Economics for the timely suggestions, critical scrutiny of the manuscript and valuable comments.

My sincere thanks are also due to -

Professor Ramachandra Poduval, Director, School of Management Studies for his useful guidelines and suggestions,

Indian Council of Social Science Research, New Delhi, for awarding me the Doctoral Fellowship for my research work,

United Nations Research Institute for Social Development (UNRISD), Geneva, United Nations Economic and Social Commission for Asia and the Pacific (UNESCAP), Bangkok and Shreemati Nathibai Damodar Thackersey (SNDT) Women's University Library, Bombay, for providing relevant literature on the subject,

Ms. Elizabeth Abraham, Librarian, Department of Applied Economics and the library staff of the Centre for Development Studies, Trivandrum, College of Horticulture, Vellanikkara and College of Co-operation and Banking, Mannuthy,

Mr. Sajeev, C.V., Computer Programmer, Smt. Sujatha, K.S. and Smt. Shaheena, P., Assistant Professors, College of Co-operation and Banking, for their help in processing and analysing the data, and

The Commissionerate of Rural Development, Trivandrum, the directors, organisers, development personnel, local leaders and respondent beneficiaries of the selected governmental and non-governmental organisations for their whole-hearted support to the study.

I will be failing in my duty if I do not remember with gratitude the services of my beloved parents, who encouraged me and helped me in their own ways for the timely completion of the work.
I can do nothing but reaffirm my love and affection to my little daughter, Sandhya, who had to bear with all the unfavourable circumstances during the period of my research work.

And lastly, but not least, no words would suffice to express my profound sense of gratitude and indebtedness to my husband, Dr. K.A. Suresh, who was always with me as the real source of inspiration to work against all odds and to complete the work in time.

MOLLY JOSEPH
