ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

The present study, "Industrialization and the Urban Social Structure - A Sociological Study of Interrelationships between Industry, Ecology and Society in Rourkela" is in fact the outcome of my seven years of research and intellectual discussions with many people such as teachers, colleagues, friends and well-wishers. At the outset, I would like to place on record that I owe a great deal of intellectual and moral debts to my supervisor Prof. M.N. Panini. I strongly feel that without his guidance and encouragement I could not have finished this thesis even at this time as the present scenario of uncertainty and high level of educated unemployment in the country even after the award of Ph.D. degree forced me to take up a research-cum-teaching assignment at Nabakrushna Choudhary Centre for Development Studies, Bhubaneswar in November, 1989, soon after the completion of my field study at Rourkela. Besides Prof. Panini, Prof. Amitabh Kundu of the Centre for the Study of Regional Development has always provided me both intellectual and moral supports to complete the thesis at an early date. I have been benefited a lot by discussing with him and he gave me lot of ideas to approach the problem from an interdisciplinary perspective. By developing close contact with him I could also utilize my little knowledge of economics in this sociological study of urban-industrial complex at Rourkela. I feel highly obliged to him as he has always given me time despite his busy schedules.
I would also like to express my thanks to Prof. T.K. Oommen, Prof. Yogendra Singh, Dr. Nandu Ram and other faculty members of the Centre from whom I could learn the ABC of research. While I was at Delhi Prof. Girish K. Misra of the Indian Institute of Public Administration was also always a source of inspiration to me. It is he along with Prof. Kundu, who helped me a lot to overcome my financial crisis and the burden of looking after my old parents by providing me employment in temporary research projects off and on. So, I will be failing in my duty if I do not express my special thanks to him.

Above all, I strongly feel that I owe a great deal to my friend's parents and brother at Rourkela namely to Shri Brundaban Sahu and his family members, who made my one year of stay at Rourkela at the time of field study highly comfortable and pleasant. So to say, during the period of my stay with them in their Rourkela house I had become another son to them like my friend Shri Nabakrushna Sahu. Besides them, I would like to express my thanks to a good many friends at Rourkela namely, Mr. Pradip Ku. Mishra, Mr. Sanat Pradhan, Mr. Prakash Ch. Das, Mrs. Minati Mohapatra, Mr. Sunil Ku. Panda, Mr. Bijay Ku. Mishra and others who extend all sorts of co-operation to me during the course of my field study. My friend, Mr. Prakash Ch. Das and his wife Mrs. Minati Mohapatra of the personnel department in Rourkela Steel Plant helped me a great deal in establishing close rapport with the workers working in the steel plant. Certainly, I will be failing in my duty if I do not place on record my special thanks and gratitude to my friend Shri Nabakrushna Sahu of Indian Economic Service, his wife Mrs. Jyotsna Sahu and his younger brother Mr. Rajkishore Sahu. My friend and his younger brother enlightened me a lot about the city and its localities, formation of neighbourhoods and the complex ecological process of growth in Rourkela.

I also wish to record my thanks to Prof. Baidyanath Misra and Prof. L.K. Mahapatra, the former Directors of Nabakrushna Choudhury Centre for Development Studies, Bhaubaneswar who encouraged me to complete my thesis at an early date. It is because of their co-operation I could complete the work and did not feel much strain of working in a research institute. Prof. K.K. Mohanti, the present acting Director of Nabakrushna Choudhury Centre for Development Studies deserves special thanks for his continuous encouragement to me to complete the thesis work at an early date. Also, I wish to express my thanks to my colleagues at the Centre namely, Prof. Basudev Sahoo, Shri N.C. Kar, Dr. Radhamohan Mallik, Dr. Prasanna Ku. Tripathy, Dr. Shakti Prasad Padhi, Mr. Paramanand Naik and to my teacher-cum-colleague Dr. Kishore Ch. Samal from whom I have been benefited a lot while discussing with them on different aspects of industrialization, urbanization and the ecology. Besides them, I have been benefited a lot from the discussions held with my friends based in Delhi namely Dr. Gopinath Pradhan, Dr. Balgovind Baboo, Dr. Chitrasen Pasayat, Dr. Biswajit Ghosh, Mr. Hrushikesh Panda, Mr. Gajendra Bhnjbal, Mr. Ashok Ku. Tripathy and others.
This sort of research work could not have been carried out without the help of library staff in the various libraries of Delhi and Bhubaneswar. I wish to record my thanks to the librarian and the staff of Jawaharlal Nehru University Library, New Delhi and in person to Shri Abakash Jena, the librarian of my institute, Nabakrushna Choudhury Centre for Development Studies, Bhubaneswar.

The raw manuscript was typed by different people during various stages of my thesis work. The first complete draft of the thesis was typed by Shri. Debabrata Sahu for which I am thankful to him. Shri. Harish Chandra Bisht deserves special thanks for typing the final thesis in computer.

Last but not the least, I will fail in my duty if I do not record my thanks to my sample respondents and people and officials of Rourkela who extend all sorts of co-operation to me at the time of field study.

I am sure my old parents and my wife Sushama and daughter Pratiksha and Pragyan will forget the agonies of my long separation from them, the moment they see the thesis in its final shape.

New Delhi,
