“The look that the native turns on the settler’s town is a look of lust, a look of envy; it expresses his dreams of possession - all manner of possession: to sit at the settler’s table, to sleep in the settler’s bed, with his wife if possible. The colonized man is an envious man. And this the settler knows very well; when their glances meet he ascertains bitterly, always on the defensive ‘They want to take our place’. It is true, for there is no native who does not dream of setting himself up in the settler’s place.” (Fanon, The Wretched of the Earth 30)

“Decolonization is always a violent phenomenon. Decolonization, which sets out to change the order of the world, is obviously, a programme of complete disorder.” (Fanon The Wretched of the Earth 27)

“An eye for an eye only ends up making the whole world blind.” (Mahatma Gandhi)
