This thesis wouldn't have been possible without the inspiration and provocation of several people.

At the outset the person who gave me the idea of researching on prison and rendered all his support until the very end of it, Dr. V. C. Harris, thanks for being there as teacher, guide and a very close friend.

Special thanks to Dr. C. B. Sudhakaran, former HoD, Department of English, Cochin College, whose fiery lectures and firm arguments initiated me into the real academic world.

Sincere thanks to my dear teachers; Dr. P. P. Raveendran, Dr. K. M. Krishnan, Prof. D. Vinayachandran, Mr. P. Balachandran, Dr. Umer Tharammel, Dr. Bernd Pflug, and Dr. A. K. Ramakrishnan.

Very special thanks to Prof. A. M. Geevarghese, former HoD, Union Christian College, Aluva for the guidance and friendship.

Sincere thanks to the staff of the University Library, Mahatma Gandhi University, and School of Letters Library.

I thank Muzaffer Ahmed and Mohammed Sajid who helped to keep the spirit high in the arid desert.

I thank my special circle of friends; Mathew, Srija, Colbe, Rachel, Philip, Vineesh, Annamma P. Varghese, Cheri, and Sreejith M. K., for the discussions, provocations, music and love.

Finally the three women in my life who keep me going on different levels: my mother, whose strength and determination is solely responsible for my academics; Siva, my love and life, who has sacrificed so much for this thesis to materialise; and my little Gulabo, who got to play very less with her father when she really wanted, thanks a tonne for being there.
