“Gratitude makes sense of our past, brings peace for today, and creates a vision for tomorrow”

- Melody Beattie

With all my heart, I thank the Almighty God for granting me the opportunity to experience this immensely enlightening intellectual journey. I dedicate this thesis to God for His blessings and kind grace throughout the course of my research.

First and foremost, I would like to express my profound gratitude to my esteemed research supervisor, Dr. Suveera Gill, Professor, University Business School, Panjab University, Chandigarh, for her valuable supervision, continuous guidance, constant help, and critical evaluation throughout the course of my PhD study and related research. Her persistent support stimulated me to exploit the best of my potential at each stage during the period of research. Her perseverance, conscientiousness, and disciplined and methodical approach epitomized an ideal mentor. This tremendous learning from her is an experience of a lifetime and will be a guiding light for me in all my future endeavours. Without her immense knowledge, undeterred support, painstaking efforts, active involvement, prompt guidance, and dynamic encouragement, I would not have been able to undertake and successfully accomplish this strenuous research work.

I am extremely grateful to Prof. Deepak Kapur, Chairman, University Business School, for his unwavering support and providing dynamic research environment in the department. I am highly thankful to Prof. S.K. Chadha and Prof. A.K. Vashisht, Ex-Chairman, University Business School, for their continuous motivation, worthy help, and extending facilities during the course of my study. I am also thankful to all the faculty members of University Business School for extending help in one way or the other during my research work, with a special mention to Dr. Parmjit Kaur, Professor, University Business School, Panjab University, Chandigarh, for her benevolence, unfailing support, and continuous motivation throughout my period of research.

I gratefully acknowledge the help and suggestions of Dr. Philip G. Berger, Wallman Family Professor of Accounting and Deputy Dean of the part-time MBA programs, the University of Chicago Booth School of Business, Chicago, and Dr. Mohammad Akbar Ansari, Professor, Indian Institute of Management, Lucknow, in clarifying the sample selection procedure and providing guidance on variable operationalization. Their timely and constructive responses and willingness to share useful insights from their research work were fundamental in guiding the empirical work undertaken in the present study. I feel gratefully indebted to Dr. Nitin Arora, Assistant Professor, Department of Economics, Panjab University, Chandigarh, for sharing his expert knowledge on econometrics and statistical analysis. His earnest assistance and valuable time equipped me with rigorous statistical toolkit for conducting the present research analysis.

I humbly acknowledge the assistance of Ms. Harpreet Kaur, Ex-Librarian, University Business School, Panjab University, Chandigarh, for extending her valuable help in locating the online research literature relating to my topic. I acknowledge with thanks the assistance of staff members of the library, computer centre, and the office of UBS. I would also like to thank the authorities and staff of A.C. Joshi Library, Panjab University, Chandigarh, for the access of their library facilities. I wish to acknowledge Mr. Ashwani Kumar of Venus Stationer’s for giving the final shape to this thesis.
It is a pleasure to express my deep sense of gratitude and regards to my dear friends, Japneet Kaur and Kiran Sharma, for their delightful companionship, continuous encouragement, generous help, emotional support, and for creating a positive work environment that stimulated creativity and learning.

No words can express my gratitude to my parents, Mr. Naresh Dheer and Mrs. Jyoti Dheer, as well as Mr. Vijay Dhir and Mrs. Priya Dhir, for their unflagging love, unflagging sacrifices, and unconditional support throughout my life. It was their blessings and faith in me which constantly inspired me to progress in all my endeavours. A special thanks to my husband and best friend, Mr. Anurag Dhir, for his tremendous emotional support, continuous encouragement, intellectual help, and unwavering faith in me during my pursuit of research, without which this work would not have been possible. A sincere word of acknowledgement is deserved for the loving support of my brother, Mr. Anuj Dheer.

Finally, I would like to thank everybody who has been instrumental to the successful completion of the thesis, as well as expressing my apology that I could not mention them one-by-one.
