Index:

Indology Studies in Germany
(with special reference to Literature, Rgveda and Fire-worship)

1. Introduction
   1.1 Historical traces of Indian culture in the world
   1.2 Aims and Objectives
   1.3 Methods
   1.4 Hypothesis
   1.5 Conclusions

2. Indology and Germany
   2.1 Brief account of Indo-German relations
   2.2 Definition: Indology
   2.3 Survey of Indology Studies in Germany
   2.4 Present situation of Indology Studies in various German universities
   2.5 Limitations of this work

3. The Rgveda
   3.1 Fixing the date of the Rgveda
   3.2 Method of preserving the Vedic knowledge amongst Indians
   3.3 Division of the Vedas
   3.4 The language of the Rgveda
   3.5 Various commentaries on the Rgveda
   3.6 The physical appearance of the Rgveda
   3.7 The Deities of the Rgveda

4. Vedic sacrifices

- 1 -
4.1 Classification of the Yajñas
4.2 Somayaga
4.3 Animal-sacrifice in the Yajñas
4.4 Darśapūrnamāsēṭi
4.5 Vyāhṛatihoma

5. Agnihotra

5.1 Procedure
5.2 Basic Religion
5.3 Three folded form of Agni
5.4 Significance of oblations

6. Yajña : A Scientific Perspective

6.1 Purification of atmosphere
6.2 Importance of material used in Agnihotra
6.2.1 : Dried cow-dung cakes
6.2.2 : Clarified butter made out of cow-milk
6.2.3 : Rice grains
6.2.4 : Copper pyramid
6.3 : Chanting of Mantras
6.4 : Significance of time
6.5 : Significant Effects of Agnihotra on human mind
6.5.1: Homogeneous Effect on the mind
6.5.2 : Brain-waves
6.6 : Agnihotra and organic farming
6.7 : Agnihotra ash medicines
6.8 : Agnihotra and Radioactivity
6.9.1 : Measuring the effects with Kirlion Photography
6.9.2 : Measuring the effects with PIP Imaging
6.10: Research regarding the effects of Soma Sacrifice
7. Interviews 233 ... 250

8. Conclusions 251 ... 281
  8.1 Vedic Tradition
  8.2 : Yajña - the original ritual of every religion
  8.3 : Agnihotra
  8.3.1 : Further Research Opportunities
  8.4 : Summary

9. Bibliography 282 ... 292

10. Appendix 293 ... 296
  10.1 Fire-worship around the world

... ... ...