ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

I hereby, proudly present “My Research Work”. However as I claim it to be mine, a word as small as “My” won’t be able to conceal the support that went behind making my hard-work count successfully. So I’d first like to express my heartfelt “Thank you” to acknowledge all those who made up the hidden me!

Right at the outset, I would like to thank and pay my obeisance to the Almighty, for blessing me with such wonderful parents, siblings and a partner for Life. They have been my pillars of support all throughout. HIS blessings have helped me successfully accomplish all the endeavours.

I owe many thanks to my family: Papa, Mummy, Na, Aatya, Daddy, Aai, Kanchan Di, Vivek Jiju, Renu, Ashish, Urvashi, Ishu and Kalu for their unconditional love and for being the ‘Architect of my Life’. Thank you for bearing with my craziest and crankiest ways! I would not have seen the light of this accomplishment without Ninad being my side. Thank you for being so patient and calm, optimistic, always listening to my pettiest complaints, pacifying me and motivating me. You are one of the treasured gifts ICT has given me!

I’d like to thank my guide and mentor, Prof. Purnima D. Amin for being the ‘Architect of my Research work’ in the true sense of each word. Her optimism, constant encouragement and patience helped me sail over many a tides and I always emerged out as a more knowledgeable individual with a renewed vigor. Without her able guidance and support this research work would have remained just a figment of my imagination that wouldn’t have seen the lights of success! I fall short of words to express my gratitude and indebtedness towards her for making me the individual that I am today by guiding me professionally, personally, philosophically and spiritually.

I would like to sincerely thank Prof. G. D. Yadav, Vice Chancellor, Institute of Chemical Technology, and Prof. P V. Devarajan, Head, Pharmaceutical Department, ICT, for the institutional infrastructure and departmental facilities throughout my tenure.

I heartily thank UGC-SAP for granting me financial support for my PhD tenure.

I owe my thanks to all the faculty members: Sathaye madam, Leena madam, Degani madam, Vandana madam for their constant encouragement.

Research in the academia has always been encouraged by the industry which generously provides gift samples of drugs/exciipients required. I would like to acknowledge Lupin Labs Ltd for their timely supplies of Rifampicin and Isoniazid samples and Cipla for providing Felodipine samples. I had an opportunity to explore numerous excipients owing to their abundant presence and kind gifts by BASF, Evonik, Ashland and Capsugel. I express my deep and sincere gratitude to Dr. G. Bhatt for giving me his valuable inputs and allowing me to take trials for capsule coating at Associate Capsules Ltd.

I am thankful to ICMR and CSIR for funding my travel to Italy and US and providing me with an opportunity to showcase my work on an international platform. It was indeed an enriching experience! Thanks are due to Medha Di, Anju Di and Sejal for being such wonderful host during my stay in Chicago.

During the tenure of my research work, ICT has been a second home to me. I owe special thanks to many members therein. My seniors Devang, Rakesh, Farooq, Teja, Ketki, Umangti, Kiran have been guiding me throughout; and generously helping me out with life within and beyond the bounds of laboratory, my colleagues Harita, Pradnya, Sharad, Rahul, Avinash, Tariq, Ajay, Ritesh and the younger members have been absolutely delightful to work with. All of them together made the laboratory a wonderful place to work in.

I would like to thank my SSS family for the recreational moments I shared with them: Devang, Faruq, Rakesh, Rahul, Jayant, Gauresh, Divya, Rufi, Pankaj.

Mahatma Gandhi once said “Adversity is the crucible in which friendship is tested”. Marking the words of someone as great as “Bapu” himself, I’d like to take this opportunity to thank my closest pals: Shanti, Arundhati, Anu, Galvina, Disha, Clara, Ninad, Moru, Mandar, Pratik, Sushant, Vishal, Haresh, Mannu bhaiya and Lalit, who have stood by my side against every test of time, to help me rise higher and stronger. A special mention of our trips to Sarpass and Leh-Ladakh, weekend stays at Palghar, unlimited cooking (maggis and khichdis), camping and masti. Successful completion of my research work hereby testifies the strength of our friendship. My journey at ICT had begun with Shanti. Thank you for teaching me to face the complexities of Life in such a simple manner with a smiling face. You were, are and will always be my bestest buddy. Miss you!

Thanks go out to each and every member of the ‘Vagabond group’ for all the aadvaventures, innumerable memorable treks and outings we had in the last six years. I would also like to pass a word of thanks to the ‘Tiger seekers gang’: Vibhuti, Rohini, Rahul, Sandeep and Gunjan for all those jungle safaris we had for spotting the Tiger. I am sure the tigers at Bandhavgrad are waiting to see us again!

Lastly, I would like to take a bow in front of the majestic Sahyadris and the Himalayas for those timeless moments they have gifted me with.
