I would like to thank all the teachers in the Sociology Department for the training which prepared me to write this thesis.

I do not have adequate words to express my gratitude to my supervisor and mentor Prof. Ratna Naidu. The fact that the thesis has been completed and I am in a position to write this acknowledgement is mainly because of her constant encouragement and close supervision of my work. I was attracted to Sociology and have taken it up as my profession mainly because of the interest kindled in me by her lectures in the post-graduate classes. Further, many of the tools and techniques which I have used in this thesis were taught to me by Prof. Prakash Rao during the encounters with him through Prof. Ratna Naidu. I am grateful to the authorities of the Hyderabad Municipal Corporation, Hyderabad Urban Development Authority, A.P. Housing Board, A.P. Infrastructure Corporation and Quli Qutub Shah Development Authority for their cooperation and for giving access to data used in this thesis. Discussions with Mr. P.V. Chowdhary, Chief Town Planner, A.P. Town Planning Department and Mr. Sudhir Mohan, Iown Planner, HUDA helped me to formulate my research problem and to understand the predicaments faced by planners and policy makers in the cities of Third World countries.
I thank Mr. Vinod Bhargava for the cartography work. I am grateful to Mr. Vijay Bhasker for typing the rough drafts and Mr. T. Venu for typing out the final drafts of my thesis. I would like to thank my hostel friends, especially Abhijit Sengupta and Davuluri Venkateshwara. Abhijit supervised the typing while I was away in Poona and also corrected some of the syntactical errors.

To Jaya Kamalakar I am indebted for lively discussions on my thesis topic and for editorial and other help in completing the thesis under a deadline.

Finally I would like to express my gratitude to my parents for constantly encouraging me and for never burdening me with domestic responsibilities during the tenure of my Ph.D.
