REFERENCE

Binith V. Thampi. Determinants, Female Autonomy and the Impact of Autonomy in Women’s well being in Kerala, India. Paper presented at 2004 Conference,
European Association for South Asian Studies.

Borell. et.al. (1999). “Social inequalities in Perceived Health and Use of Health Services in a Southern European Urban Area” International Journal of Health Services 29 (4) 743-764.

Carla Risseau and Irudaya Rajan. Comparative Issues of Ageing: Public and Private
Care and Security Arrangement, ESMSAS 2006

Census 2011.com.in

Chatterjee, Meera. (1990). Indian Women; Their Health and Economic Productivity;
World Bank Discussion Paper 109, Washington DC.

Dublin.

Das Gupta, Monica. (1994). “Life Course Perspectives on Women’s Autonomy and Health Outcomes” Mimeo.

Das, Aravind, (1992), India Invented A Nation in the Making, Manohar Publication,
New Delhi.

Dileep, T.R., (2002). “Understanding levels of Morbidity and Hospitalization in Kerala, India” Bulletin of the WHO, 80 (9).

Farida Hussein- Improvement in the Economic conditions of Muslim women in India. In Problems of Muslim women in India (ed) Asghar Ali Engineer, Orient Longman.

Indian Human Development Report: Health, Morbidity and Disability, A profile of Indian States in 1990’s.

Leela, Ittiamma., Utilization of Health Care Facilities (Government)in Rural Areas, Thiruvananathapuram: KRPLLD.

Radhakrishnan et al. Socio Economic and Demographic factors Associated With Birth weight A Community Based Study in Kerala, Indian Pediatrics, 2007, 37.

Yadava, “Women and Heart Disease” Article, Yojana, July, 2005

