ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

Last four years of my life have been a journey in self-discovery. It was an exploration of places and people whose lives had always fascinated me. It was also a time when I traversed the known and the unknown in my own self. It was a passage into the depths of my mind, ‘the bottomless abyss’. As I inch closer to the end of this journey, I can say that it has prepared me to undertake the voyage for the quest of knowledge.

Before I express my gratitude towards the people who were instrumental in ensuring a successful end to this journey, I would like to thank those who misguided, demotivated and discouraged me at various points during the last four years. Though they numbered very few, yet they played a crucial role in ensuring that I was never complacent. They were the ones who made me even more grateful towards the people who stood by me in all weather, whose guidance and efforts made the journey an experience in learning.

Dr. Neera Agnimitra, my PhD supervisor has not only guided me whenever I stumbled and was in doubt, she has brought about a personal transformation in me during this very short period of time. Her critical and insightful inputs were crucial towards my academic growth. Her strict adherence to schedules, eye for detail, confidence she exudes, and above all her indefatigable support were instrumental in the completion of this task. Since I can never in words or kind convey my gratitude towards her, I take this opportunity to seek her blessings.

I would also like to take this opportunity to express my gratitude to my teachers in the Department of Social Work in the order in which they entered my life. Heartfelt thankfulness is due to Dr. Manoj Kumar Jha for inspiring me during a time when the odds were against me and for putting me in touch with the Agarias of Little Rann of Kachchh. I would like to thank Prof. Sushma Batra for motivating me to take up the journey five years ago. This journey would not have been possible without Prof. Sanjai Bhatt urging me to take up the challenge and his words of advice at every crucial juncture of the work. I also acknowledge the support provided by Prof. Bhatt and Prof. Batra in their capacity as Head of the Department at various stages of my work.
The support rendered by Mr. Sukhdevbhai Patel of Ganatar, Ahmedabad, and Mr. Lalubhai Desai of Manav Kalyan Trust (MKT), Khedbrahma, ensured the successful completion of my fieldwork in Gujarat. Besides extending logistical support for fieldwork, Mr. Patel from his experience of working with the Agarias provided me with valuable advice which helped me chart my course of work during these years.

The Agarias of Gujarat welcomed me and allowed me to be a part of their lives in their villages and in the Rann. I am indebted to them for this, and for their willingness to share their experiences with me. This journey would have never reached its end without the support extended by them. I am particularly grateful to Mr. Ambubhai Patel, Vishubhai, Ganapat, and the families of Shantabhai, Hasmukhbhai, Ponabhai, and Dhirenbhai for extending their support throughout my fieldwork.

I acknowledge the invaluable support of the officials in the various departments of Government of Gujarat in Ahmedabad, Gandhinagar, and Surendranagar, and the officials of Hindustan Salt Limited (HSL), Kharaghoda, for providing the necessary permission and for patiently answering my queries. I am also grateful to the people associated with voluntary organisations across Gujarat for their guidance and allowing me access to their resources. Special thanks are due to the staff of Ganatar and Agariya Heet Rakshak Manch (AHRM).

I take this opportunity to thank Mr. Raj Coomer, Dr. A. Malathi, Prof. J.N. Pandey, Prof. A.K. Singh, Dr. R. P. Mitra, Prof. G. Chakravarty, Ms. Subhashree Sanyal, Ms. Sonal Sena, Dr. Neena Arora and Mr. Arvindbhai Acharya of Wadhwan. I would also like to thank Mr. Virender Singh Manral and all the unnamed volunteers who spend their valuable time and energy to make resources available to scholars across the world through internet.

Special thanks are due to Budhaditya, Syed Fazal D Firdausi, Pritam, Subhadeepa, Nikhil, Vinay, Manish, Mohit, Amir, Irfan, Gaurav and Reena for encouraging me whenever I was in doubt and for tirelessly listening to my field experiences for hours. I would also like to thank Romen for his constant guidance and Jaby for everything he has done for me like a brother.

I express my sincere regards to Guruji, Dr. K.N. Rao, whose blessings are instrumental towards the completion of every action of mine.
