Contemplating tourism, pursuing research and writing a thesis on tourism in Kashmir have been some of the most elusive attempts I could have made as a Kashmiri. It has been a challenge to push the academic debate, concerning Kashmir, towards tourism especially when the major academic discourses have been dedicated to the study of Kashmir as a ‘Paradise’ turned into ‘Hell’ because of the conflict. The word ‘Jannat’ is enough to promote Kashmir as tourist destination, but simultaneously the word ‘conflict’ brought tourism to a halt for almost 20 years. The region of Kashmir, of late, has regained hope, despite looming under the juxtaposition of paradise and conflict, to be studied as a tourist destination. This thesis has been a product of challenge I undertook 4 years back— research on Kashmir from the perspective of tourism. However, it could not have been completed without constant guidance, supervision and technical assistance of my guide and mentor Dr. Ashis K. Saha, Assistant Professor at the Department of Geography, Delhi School of Economics. He has been friendly, never refused time and gave all the freedom I could ever desire to explore my area of research. I am extremely thankful and grateful to him.

I am indebted to Prof. H. Ramachandran for teaching statistical techniques and providing new insights. He has been the most encouraging person in my life ever since I worked under his guidance for my M.Phil. dissertation. I would like to extend my special thanks to the Advisory Committee members Dr. S.C. Rai and Dr. Anindita Dutta for advice, direction and evaluation of my work at various stages. I am also grateful to former Heads of the Department of Geography, D.S.E., Dr. B. Khan and Dr. Anu Kapur, and the current Head, Dr. R.B. Singh.

Various government officials provided assistance during my field research work and data collection. Officials like M. Ashraf (Ex-Director, Tourism, J&K), Mr. Hakeem Iftikhar (Chief Town Planner, J&K) and Mr. Shabir Bhat (KAS) deserve special gratitude and appreciation for rendering valuable help in the form of open-ended interviews, trusting me with important documents, maps and literature; without which the research would have gone into a dead end. I owe debt to numerous respondents, tourists, hotel and restaurant managers and the local residents. Their cooperation, response, views and opinions have formed the backbone of this work. Department of Tourism, J&K, deserves special thanks for providing me with the data regarding tourism.

I would also like to express my gratefulness to the staff of Ratan Tata Library, and the librarians of AMU, JNU and the University of Kashmir. Prof. Mondira Dutta of JNU and Prof. Rajaprakash of School of Planning and Architecture (SPA) have been inspirational. Their suggestions provided direction to my thoughts which proved priceless for my thesis.

I would like to acknowledge CSIR and UGC for awarding me research fellowships. Teaching along with research has not only broadened my academic horizon but also helped me steer my thesis into some of the previously ignored directions; for which I would like to thank my colleagues, students, staff, researchers at DSE and Dyal Singh College.

I am deeply thankful to Shipra Shukla for helping me with the editing, proof-reading and typing of the final draft of my PhD thesis. Pawar Computer at Ber Sarai needs special mention for printing and binding the thesis.

My stay in Delhi was made comfortable and enjoyable in the warm company of my dear friends like Sumit, Shyam, Ali, Tufail, Gulzar, Tariq, Ashraf, Vijay, Pritam and Tulika. Their support, encouragement, love, humour and help at the time of need must be acknowledged and appreciated. This research work also owes debt to many more people and sources apart from the ones I have mentioned. Since not all could be included, I extend my gratitude and thanks to the omitted ones as well. I share the sole responsibility for all the faults, misjudgement of interpretation and inadequacies.

Finally, to my parents and siblings, I owe the biggest debt for their unconditional patience, love and blessings which I have received.
