ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

First of all, I express my deep sense of gratitude to my Supervisors, Dr. Deepa Saran, Department of Business Economics, South Campus, University of Delhi and Prof. Ajay Patnaik, School of International Studies, Jawaharlal Nehru University, New Delhi, who have been a constant source of guidance and encouragement. They have provided their valuable guidance, time and taken meticulous care till the finalization of the work. I sincerely express my thanks for their support and advice given to me.

I am highly indebted and thankful to Prof. V.K. Kaul, Head of the Department of Business Economics, who extended the much needed cooperation, encouragement and necessary assistance at various stages in completing the thesis.

With gratitude, I acknowledge the invaluable cooperation extended to me by Dr. Nalin Kumar Mohapatra, School of International Studies, Jawaharlal Nehru University for his scholarly guidance and constructive ideas for improvement of my work. I am also thankful and acknowledge the precious time, suggestions and guidance from Dr. Meena Singh Roy, Research fellow, Institute for Defense Studies and Analyses, New Delhi.

I am also thankful to Library staff of South Delhi Campus, Jawaharlal Nehru University, World Bank library, Institute for Defense Studies and Analyses, Gargi College library, The Energy Research Institute, The Ratan Tata library, Ministry of Commerce and Industry which facilitated my collection of necessary information and data.

I do not find appropriate words to express my regards to my beloved parents, without their blessings, prayers and inspiration, this work would not have been completed. I am also grateful to my children Varun and Manisha for helping me from time to time in my work and supporting me by taking care of my health. I am highly grateful to my husband, who was the biggest source of cooperation, support, help and reassurance which I received from him whenever required.
