ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

This work of research could not have attained its realistic shape unless I was being continuously supported, guided, advised and encouraged by so many individuals in their various capacities, official or otherwise. From politicians, administrators, technocrats and academicians to hundreds of villagers in different areas of Malda district I have deeply felt that there was somebody everywhere, all the time, which helped me in my work.

My sincere thanks and deep sense of gratitude go to my supervisor of my research Professor Sumantro Mukherjee for guiding the research, giving valuable suggestions, adding new dimensions to the work and patiently going through all the chapters and making minute corrections.

My heartfelt and special thanks must go to Md. Mustafizur Rahaman, Md. Kamal Hossain, Amit Mondal, Asit Mondal, who were the most convent persons as my navigator in true since the beginning of all the primary survey of mouzes of the study area. They have also provided me with very important infrastructural support and personal attention to my field programmes in the district. I am also grateful to the villagers for their co-operation in my field work.

I am thankful to Ms. Pramila Nandi and Mr. Goutam for their extensive cartographic help. I also offer my heartfelt gratitude to Md. Kamal Hossain, Sri Debdatta Saha, Md. Ziaur Rahaman for their very practical and effective helps during preparation of manuscripts correction.

I pay my deep respect to Associate Professor S. Chattaraj (Principal, Govt. Teachers’ Training Institution, Malda), who was my teacher, for his continuous vigilance, monitoring and personal advices regarding my work. I also convey my humble respect to Associate Prof. C. Chattaraj (Principal, Womens’ College, Malda), for her sustained encouragement.

One of my very close aides during the progress of my work was Dr. Swades Pal, Asst. Prof. Gourbanga University, Malda who deserves my deep gratitude for his continuous support, criticism, inspiration and logistic input throughout my work. Prolonged discussions and constructive debates with him concerning various parts of this thesis enriched me immensely. He also ungrudgingly offered his valuable time and shouldered lots of responsibilities I burdened on him during very critical stage of this thesis. I convey my heartfelt appreciation for his support.
I pay my deep respects to Nupur Pal for her sustained encouragement.

I am also extremely grateful to Ms Alaya Begum for her valuable assistance in procuring at various stages of my thesis.

My beloved nephew (Arka Ash) and sisters (Shema Kar, Sanborti De) are always my source of inspiration.

I am grateful to my family members for patiently tolerating me during my research tenure, because often my research schedule and activities threw spanner into the otherwise smooth lifestyle of them.

Finally, I am grateful to my mother for her continuous encouragement during my work for her moral boosting words that inspired me in those critical stages of this tenure.

At the end, and most importantly, I dedicate this work to my grandfather, Sri Anath Bandhu De.
