Acknowledgements

This arduous endeavour lasted for about six years and various people and institutions have contributed in its accomplishment in various ways. I consider it my pleasant duty to use this opportunity to acknowledge it.

I would like to begin with expressing my deep gratitude to my thesis supervisor Prof. Mridula Mukherjee for her keen interest, generous encouragement and support throughout. She has guided this work with scholarly insights, incisive comments, and required suggestions. For me, she has been more than an academic research supervisor and whatever academic standing I have acquired so far, I owe it to her. Thank you ma’m for your munificent support throughout and never failing confidence in my abilities.

Prof. Aditya Mukherjee, Chairperson, CHS is always very generous, encouraging and supportive in all my ventures.

Prof. Bipan Chandra has been my source of inspiration from the day I made this not so common choice for my generation to pursue career in academics and research. I shall ever be thankful to him for his deep interest in my work, affectionate encouragement and adopting me to a wonderful collective called 'Delhi Historians' Group'.

I am thankful to my teachers at the Centre for Historical Studies - Profs. K.N. Panikkar, S. Bahattacharya, Dilbagh Singh, Neeladri Bhattacharya, Drs. Yogesh Sharma, Sucheta Mahajan, Radhika Singha, Indivar Kamtekar and R. Mahalakshmi who helped me in broadening my understanding of 'History' beyond chronological narratives and made my learning years at CHS a wonderful experience. Outside CHS, Profs. R.K. Jain, Ajay Dube, Pradipeta Chaudhury and Dr. Pralay Kanungo provided much needed suggestions at different stages of this work. Dr. Lalit Joshi from Allahabad University encouraged me to join CHS which proved to be the turning point in my career and I am thankful to him for guidance.

It is a matter of honour for me to be part of the Delhi Historians' Group and I would like to use this opportunity to express my debt of gratitude to the members of this collective - Sucheta Mahajan, Bodh, Visalakshi Menon, Antony
Thomas, Salil Misra, Bhupendra Yadav, Lata Singh, Neerja Singh, Rakesh Batabyal and R. Mahalakshmi for their affection, encouragement and stimulating discussions over a range of issues.

During the research for this work, I had the opportunity to visit Mauritius and UK. In Mauritius, Prof. Vijaya Teelock, Chairperson, Aappravasi Ghat Trust Fund is deeply interested in my work and very affectionately provided every support to make my trip a success. I bothered her and Nalini Trebhoobun for every professional and personal need - from locating vegetarian food to records in archives or making contacts with people in the field and sightseeing and they were there, always. Prof. Sooryakanti N. Gayan, Director of Mahatma Gandhi Institute, very generously arranged for my stay at the Guest House of MGI and provided me the opportunity to share my ideas with the scholars at the institute. During my stay in Mauritius, I had the opportunity to interact with many distinguished scholars and prominent public figures - Prof. Uttama Bissoondoyal, Abhimanyu Unat, Dr. B. Teelock, N. Gopalu, S.G. Reddi, C. Kalla, Anand Mullu, Bir Jagasingh, Gautami Ramyad, Kishore Pertab, S. Peerthum, Arjoon, Ganga da, and Saloni Deerpalsingh, which widened my knowledge of Indian Diaspora and enriched my understanding of the complex issues of the subject. They made my research trip to Mauritius a pleasant combination of work and leisure. At the Immigration Archives, MGI, Mrs. Deerpalsingh and V. Govinden, with their thorough knowledge of records, made my work much easier and I managed to save a lot of precious time during my short stay. I shall ever be indebted to them for this support. At the National Archives Mauritius, its Director Mr. Saneechar and Mr. Mookul from reading room gave me unconditional access to their holdings. Vijaya, Nin, Saloni, Anu and J.P. Tripathi also provided the much needed diversions from the tedium of work.

In UK, I worked in the British Library and National Archives in London and the Rhodes House Library in Oxford. I am thankful to the staff of these repositories for giving me access to the records and passionate professional efficiency. In particular, I wish to thank Mr. Tim Thomas of the Oriental and India Office Collection of the British Library for his vast knowledge of sources on my area of research and for the guide he had prepared which saved me from getting lost in the overabundance of indexes and records. During my stay in UK, I had the opportunity to discuss my work with two finest scholars of Mauritian Studies - Clare Anderson and Marina Carter and their comments helped me in formulating my views. Dr. Sanjoy Bhattacharya (UCL) was an affectionate guardian during my stay. Mrs. Pandit was a generous host. Abhishek made the last days of my stay a worth combination of work and entertainment.

I was fortunate to have the opportunities to present some of the ideas of this work with the scholarly audiences at Mahatma Gandhi Institute and Aapravasi Ghat Trust Fund, Mauritius; Sussex University, UK and very recently, at the Centre for Historical Studies, JNU. I was immensely benefited from the comments and suggestions from the scholars present on these occasions. In addition to thanking them, I wish to thank, in particular, Profs. Vijaya Teelock and Soorya Gayan in Mauritius, Dr. Daniel Roycroft from Sussex University and Prof. Aditya Mukherjee, Chairperson, CHS for providing me such rare opportunities. I am particularly thankful to Dr. Gyanesh Kudaisya (NUS) for his incisive comments on my presentation at a recent conference organised by the Centre for Historical Studies on 'Writing 20th Century History: From Colony to Nation'.

I am thankful to my friends for being with me in the hours of need and making my JNU years a memorable experience.

I must also thank the staff of the British Library, London, National Archives, Richmond, Rhodes House Library, Oxford, Immigration Archives, MGI, Mauritius, National Archives, Mauritius, University of Mauritius Library, National Archives of India, New Delhi, Nehru Memorial Museum and Library, New Delhi, Central Secretariat Library, New Delhi, West Bengal State Archives, Kolkata, National Library, Kolkata, UP State Archives, Lucknow, Regional Archives, Varanasi, JNU Library, DSA/CHS Library for generously extending their facilities and unconditional access to their holdings. I would particularly like to thank Tim Thomas of British Library, Mr. Govinden of Immigration Archives, Mauritius, Mr. Mukool of National Archives, Mauritius, Dr. Sandhya Nagar (Director) and Dr. Meera of UP State Archives, Drs. Vidisha and Sharmistha of the West Bengal State Archives for their keen interest in my work and patience in attending my unending queries.

I am thankful to the Indian Council for Historical Research, New Delhi and the Charles Wallace India Trust, London for providing the much needed financial support to pursue this endeavour. Special thanks are due to Mr. Richard Alford, Secretary of the Charles Wallace Trust who has still maintained a keen interest in my work (or 'passion' in his words) and very generously increased my grant, considering the financial constraints of the 'scholars from the third world'.

My family has been the unwavering source of strength for me and I owe my inestimable debt of gratitude to my family for being with me always. Without their unending support, love and faith in my abilities (despite my repeated failures), it would not have been possible for me to complete this work. They have given so much of themselves so generously and selflessly that I find it impossible to express my gratitude on words. Rashmi has been with me for some time now, sharing the phases of distress and exuberance of my life. Children around me - Golu, Charu, Aana, Kuhu, Pihu and of course Madhavi, have simultaneously enthused my interest in their joyous activities, which is an altogether new area of exploration for me like the theme of this work.

I consider myself privileged for being part of two wonderful families - my clan and the Delhi Historians' Group. As a token expression of my gratitude, I would like to dedicate this work to the heads of these two families - my mother Smt. Prabha Mishra and Prof. Bipan Chandra, who have been the constant source of inspiration for me.

I am thankful to Manoj ji for the painstaking task of typing parts of this work and making it aesthetically apt.

I thank you all for making this work possible and owe the responsibility for the errors remaining.
