ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

I would like to ‘thank you’ all, but this is a very small word which would not be enough for my expression of gratitude. This research would have not materialized if I did not have support and encouragement from a number of people, and it is an honour and pleasure to thank all those who made it possible. I would like to thank everyone who helped and supported me, directly or indirectly. I am going to try but if a name is not listed, rest assured that my gratitude is not less than for those listed below.

First and foremost, I express my deep sense of gratitude with respect and regard to my supervisor, Dr. S.S. Deora. He was always there to listen and give advice. His initial inspiration, encouraging attitude and profound guidance through each and every stage of the research work have enabled me to complete the present study. He is responsible for enabling my interest in the study of Vietnam. I am really fortunate and have proud privilege of preparing this work under his supervision. He taught me how to express my ideas and guided me to the relevant and needed approach for the study. No words can express the magnitude of my profound sense of respect and gratitude for him for the valuable guidance, stimulating discussion and help, which stood me in good stead.

I would also like to thank my supervisor for inspiring me to learn the French and Vietnamese languages for the proper understanding of the problems of the study.

I express my thanks to Mr. Krishnendra Meena, for providing help and support and for his support and understanding nature. I am also thankful to the staffs and teachers of the Centre for International politics, Organization and Disarmament, School of International Studies, New Delhi. I also express my gratitude to the staff of the embassy of Vietnam for providing valuable information and material.
