ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

This doctoral thesis would not have been possible without the guidance, support, patience and the help of several individuals who in one way or another contributed and extended their valuable assistance in the preparation and completion of this study. It is to them that I owe my deepest gratitude.

First and foremost, my utmost gratitude to Dr. S.P.K. Jena, Associate Professor, Department of Applied Psychology, South Campus, University of Delhi for being my advisor. It has been my absolute privilege to work under such an exceptional person. I shall always remain indebted to him for guiding me throughout the research and has been my inspiration as I hurdle all the obstacles in the completion of this research work. His patience, steadfast encouragement, commitment, perseverance, expertise and a critical teacher in him has paved me the path for completing this wonderful research. Thank you Sir, for being the best role model anyone could ever ask for in academic life. I would not have been able to complete this research work without your guidance, motivation, and continual support.

I am also thankful to the Department of Psychology for their support and assistance, especially the head of department, Prof. N.K. Chadda for his support in providing the necessary facilities to carry out this work. I would like to acknowledge the financial, academic and technical support of the University of Delhi and its staff in extending their support for this research. The library facilities and computer facilities of the University, as well as the Central Library, have been indispensable.

I express my sincere gratitude to all the authors whose research papers, books, monographs, etc., I had consulted for this research study. My sincere thanks to Dr. Nandita Babu, Department of Psychology, for her cooperation and guidance.

Next, I would like to thank the administrators, staff, students of the schools who helped me in carrying out this research work, particularly the students and their parents for allowing me to work with them for more than a year. It was a real pleasure to be with you. Without you there would have been no research and no thesis.
I thank and appreciate my family and friends for their encouragement during these six years. You were there for everything, and I love you for that. Most importantly, my husband, Ajit, without whom this effort would have been worth nothing. Your support, encouragement and assistance through the years motivated me to fulfil this dream of mine. My kids Ananya and Abheek have always been my strength and motivated me to complete the study successfully. I am really sorry for not spending time with both of you. I am truly grateful to all three of you for your unconditional love and affection. I am indebted to my mother and father for fostering this dream in me. Thank you for raising me so well and for providing me with anything I ever needed. Both of you have always been my greatest support system. Thanks to my brother and sister who have given me their unequivocal support throughout, as always, for which my mere expression of thanks likewise does not suffice. My sincere thanks to my in-laws for the encouragement, profound understanding and having faith in me.

I am also thankful to my colleague and friend, Dr. Gopal Chandra Mahakud who has always been there during different stages of this work. I would like to thank my friends Dr. Archana Mohinder Singh and Dr. Aparna Aggarwal Zimmerman for their kindness, friendship and support throughout during these six years of research time.

Last but not the least; thanks are to the omnipresent God for my life through all tests in the past six years. You have made my life more bountiful. May your name be exalted, honoured and glorified.

For any errors or inadequacies that may remain in this work, of course, the responsibility is entirely my own.

Anisha Kumar