Acknowledgements

I feel proud to place on record an immense sense of gratitude for my supervisor Prof. A H Tak, Head of the English Department, University of Kashmir, whose advice, support and constant encouragement has made the present work possible. His unfailing dedication as a teacher and guide was remarkable as he painstakingly went through the present work despite his ailing health. His suggestions have largely contributed to improving the quality of this thesis.

I am also highly thankful to Prof. Muhammad Aslam, former head of the Department of English, for his invaluable help at certain crucial junctures of this research. I am also thankful to Dr. Lily Want for carefully proof-reading the thesis and making some useful suggestions. Dr. Nusrat Bazaz merits a special mention for her magnanimous attitude, constant encouragement and also for reading parts of the initial draft. Mr. Tasleem War, friend and colleague in the department, has been a great support throughout and deserves a mention here.

I also wish to thank all my family members for their generosity and care without which this project could have hardly been accomplished. My parents, my wife Huma and baby Khaleed all deserve to be mentioned with deep love and gratitude. I want to thank especially my brother Dr. Mufti Muzamil for arranging some important books from the State University of New York,
Buffalo and my sister-in-law Zara for lending me her computer at a time when mine had gone out of order.

Two of my friends, Dr. Maroof Shah and Mr. Inayat Rasool, who share with me the love for literature and philosophy and whose company has kept my intellectual interests alive, deserve to be mentioned especially.

I also wish to thank all other colleagues in the department, friends and well-wishers, who have helped me in one way or the other during the period of research.
