ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

This study would have been far from completion without the warm co-operation extended to me in different capacities by a number of people at different stages of my work. As regards, the financial and moral support required to go for the higher education (pursuing PhD in particular) is concerned, my parents' unconditional support was extremely crucial for me without which I may not have certainly dared enter into the world of academia.

My highest obligation, however, goes to my supervising teacher and noted academician Prof. Valerian Rodrigues for extending his invaluable and enlightening guidance to me at every stage of my work without which I may not, certainly, have been able to carry out my study. I am, particularly, grateful to Prof. Rodrigues for allowing me to take my due academic liberty in this study and most significantly for sharing his invaluable suggestions with me.

I am also thankful to Prof. Sudha Pai for encouraging me to work on 'Ambedkar and his notion of nationalism' for my M.Phil dissertation, under her supervision, which was a 'point of departure' for my later work on PhD thesis. Besides I extend my gratefulness to Prof. Gopal Guru for sharing his precious views on Ambedkar with me.

Lastly, I am also thankful to some of my friends like Avinash, Sanjay and Areenish and my younger brother Priyadarshi for facilitating me with useful debates on various aspects of nationalism and Ambedkar.

New Delhi, Preetam

July 21, 2009