REFERENCES

4. ASEAN India synergy sectors Report 2005.

5. Associated chambers of commerce and industry of india 2005.

13. Boyd, Walker & Larréché 1995, ‘Advertising, personal selling and sales Promotion’, Define PR on (p 352) as non-paid, non-personal stimulation of demand for a product, service or business unit by planting significant news about it or favorable presentation of it in the media (looks suspiciously similar to other definitions of publicity). Later on publicity and PR is used interchangeably (p374/375).

Implementing reforms in the telecom sector, world bank, Washington, DC, PP.253-60.

32. Dutt & Sundaram, Indian Economy, Edition, 2004

34. Economic survey, GOI,2002 – 3

66. J.D.Power and associate reports; Exceptional service satisfaction enhances dealer and manufacturer profitability through improved customer retention,“
70. Kalavani 2006, ‘To study the gap between service promised and service offered by service provider”.
72. Kotler &Armstrong 1997. ‘Advertising, personal selling and sales promotion’ (p 428) direct marketing is added as a growth trend (p 444).
75. Lehtinen 1982. ‘Services quality dimensions, John Wiley and Sons’.
94. National telecom policy 1999
95. OECD 2007 ‘Mobile multiple play, new service pricing and policy implications’, OECD digital economy papers no 126.

132. VSNL 16TH annual report 2002

133. Website: www.trai.gov.in

134. Wilska 2001, ‘New technology and young people’s consumer identities; A comparative study between Finland and Brazil’ – Senior researcher in economic sociology at the Turku School of economics, Finland.

135. World telecommunication development report 2002
