RECOMMENDATIONS

The following are some recommendations that emerged from the present research.

- The study can be further applied in a different setting or socio-cultural context.

- Further studies can be undertaken to design and implement an early childhood education curriculum model by incorporating ancient Indian thoughts on organization of knowledge in curricular areas.

- Teacher training modules on the ‘Panchakosha Theory’ of personality can be developed, with an effort to ascertain its feasibility and impact in re-interpreting the development of a child’s personality and effective classroom pedagogy.

- Further research can be undertaken to explore the visions surrounding the role of men in the early childhood care and education environments.
