ACKNOWLEDGMENT

Words turn stale and pale when it comes to expressing one's intense feeling of thankfulness. Even the appropriate ones convey the sense of gratitude only inadequately. My indebtedness to numerous persons and institutions is, in fact, much more than I may really express in words, yet I would attempt to do so in my most humble way.

First of all I owe my sincere gratitude to Dr. P.C. Jain, for supervising the present study. He has been kind enough to spare his valuable time whenever I needed it. I have benefited much from his knowledge and wisdom. Indeed, he deserves many thanks for his extremely sympathetic attitude and priceless help.

My heartiest thanks are due to Professor Shamsuddin, School of International Studies, J.N.U., who, despite his tight schedule, went through first draft of this thesis.

My special note of thanks goes to Dr. Anis Ahmad, School of International Studies, J.N.U. who helped me in removing a number of flaws and inconsistencies which this thesis initially contained. He also gave me tremendous moral support through his constant encouragement and advice.
I would also like to offer special thanks to Hazrat Maulana Ali Miyan Nadvi, Rector, Nadvatul Ulema, Lucknow, and Maulana Rabey Sahib who provided me with his informative impressions regarding Iraq. In addition, the blessings of these two personalities have always remained with me especially during the period of my struggle.

It is a pleasure to acknowledge my indebtedness to Prof. T.A. Nizami, and Dr. Rahmatulla, Department of Political Science, A.M.U., Aligarh, with whom I have had fruitful discussions when I was student at A.M.U. My fond gratitude, further, is due to my very loving and caring teacher Miss Teresa, Headmistress, Sacred Heart Inter College, Sitapur. I owe very special thanks to Mr. Partha Sarathi Mondal, for his constant moral support. He constantly inspired me to complete this task.

I extend my indebtedness to Mr. Abdaal Khalique and Mr. Shahid Khan. Not only have they encouraged me through their letters but also made frequent telephonic calls from the USA and Bahrain, respectively.

I would also like to thank Mr. Rakesh Raman Jha and Varaprasad Shekhar, my hostel mates and close friends who read the final proofs of this work and removed several mistakes.
I am deeply grateful to many friends and well-wishers who sincerely prayed for my success. In particular, I would like to thank Messrs Anisur Rahman, M. Azhar, Khurshid Alam, Ateequr Rahman, M. Irfan, M. Ali, Iqbal Zilli, Siraj Ahmad, Nishat I., Fahim, Alamtar, Sanjay Pandey, Ashutosh Thakur, Azam, Arun Jena, A. Salam, Rakesh Singh, Sudhakar Reddy, Kalim and Halima. My heartiest thanks are also due to all the family members of Mr. A.H. Noman.

My note of thanks would remain incomplete if I did not mention about my parents. There were moments in my life when, out of frustration or nervousness, I wanted to quit my Ph.D., but their advice, encouragement and blessings always prevailed. I also express my fond appreciation for my brothers Aftab Alam, Khurshid Alam, Parvez Alam, Afroz Alam who have shown remarkable forbearance and affection in putting up with my preoccupation with this thesis for a long time. I also express my affectionate gratitude to my sisters Kahkashan, Afshan, Darakhshan and Zishan who helped me in their own humble ways. My sister-in-law Farzana also encouraged me to complete this work.

Without the courteous assistance of the Staff of the libraries of the J.N.U., the A.M.U., the British Council, the American Centre, the Teen Murti, the Sapru House, and the Central Secretariat, this thesis could not have been written. I duly acknowledge their help, and thank all of them.

Finally, everyone who has produced a book or thesis knows that the completion of a work equally depends upon the assistance of various people, other than the author. These people, despite being paid, generally remain under-rewarded. In my case I owe much to Govind, Chandan and Raju, who typed and corrected the drafts of my thesis. I wish to acknowledge their help with a big 'thank you' for their patience and hard work. It would also be fitting for me to thank the owner and Staff of Sanjay Photostat, SIS, New Delhi, who carried out the xeroxing and binding work.
