ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

I am extremely grateful to Prof. Anupam Mahajan, Dean and Head Faculty of Music and Fine Arts, University of Delhi for kindly giving me permission to do this thesis on the topic, "An Analysis of the appropriateness of grouping Tyagaraja, Muthuswamy Dikshitar and Syama Sastri as the Trinity of Karnatic Music" as a part of my Doctor of Philosophy Course.

I have been exceptionally fortunate in having Prof. Radha Venkatachalam, Faculty of Music and Fine Arts, University of Delhi, as my supervisor and am deeply indebted to her for her inspiration, patient guidance and readiness to share her abundant wealth of knowledge and experience which has made this thesis possible.

Over the past five years, several people and organizations have helped me in this doctoral journey in different ways and I would like to thank all of them, especially my husband Sri. Karthik Krishnan who has supported me enthusiastically throughout my research and my sister Smt. Sucharita Venkatesh who has spent countless nights helping me to put this thesis together. I would also like to thank Dr. Ushalakshmi Krishnamoorthi, and Sri. K. Venkateshwaran for spending time to select and sing songs from notations for me from different books and to acknowledge the role Dr. Shanta Nagarajan’s thesis played in giving shape to my thoughts. I am grateful to Smt. Bama Balakrishnan and Sri. P. Varadarajan for the time they have spent in helping me with this thesis, as also many other volunteers who have spent time reading or recording books for me.
I am deeply grateful to Ford Foundation, which supported me financially to purchase and scan books to convert them into an electronic format so that I could read them on my computer using a talking software. I am also grateful to the Worth Trust, especially Sri. Venkataraman for ensuring that conversion of my books were done in a timely manner and proof read to provide an error free experience while listening to them. Above all, I would like to remember my late father for nurturing in me the desire to pursue a Ph.D in this great subject. I would like to thank my mother, Smt. Radha Narasimhan for her unwavering support and belief in me, which made this possible. I am truly grateful for her blessings and pray that I may be worthy of them.
