ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

Many people have helped and encouraged me in completing this dissertation. I take this opportunity to express my sincere appreciation and gratitude to all of them, particularly to my guide Dr. T.V. Rao, Professor, Organisational Behaviour, Indian Institute of Management, Ahmedabad. He gave me continuous guidance and support for conducting and completing this research work. I am also grateful to him for his generosity in accepting to be my guide, without his cooperation and guidance, this research could not have materialised.

I feel indebted to my parents - Sushila Mehta and Prof. Prayag Mehta for their unwearing support, encouragement and patience throughout the period of this research work.

I also wish to thank my little niece, Urmi, for keeping my spirits high by providing much needed amusing interludes while I was writing this thesis.

I take this opportunity to thank Mr. B.S. Negi of Council for Social Development for his professional help in data processing. Thanks are also due to Mr. Jagdish Singh for meticulously and patiently typing several drafts as well as the final report.

I also wish to put on record my appreciation for all my colleagues at the National Institute of Urban Affairs, New Delhi for their encouragement and support.

Last, but not the least I thank the staff of the ICDS Scheme in Delhi, particularly all the Anganwadi Workers, Supervisors, CDPOs and the beneficiaries who formed part of this research. Despite their heavy work load, they extended their full cooperation and were always forthright and patient. It was while working with the anganwadi workers that I got inspired to undertake this research. I hope that this small effort would somehow help them and, ultimately, in better functioning of the ICDS Scheme.

August, 1992

PRATIBHA MEHTA