CHAPTER 1: INTRODUCTION

1.1: Worldwide Community Radio Movement
1.2: Advancements in the field of Broadcasting
1.3: Community Radio: International perspectives
1.4: Broadcasting and Community Radio
1.5: Ownership and Control
1.6: Community Radio: The non-profit Aspect
1.7: Community Participation in Community Radio
1.8: Community in Community Radio
1.9: Community Radio and Funding
1.10: Radio a Powerful Medium
1.11: Community Radio and Women’s participation and Empowerment
1.12: Women Empowerment for Good Governance
1.13: Community Radio in India
1.14: Electronic Media in India
1.15: Social Change and Community Radio Movement
1.16: Community Radio and Revitalising Civil Society
1.18: Community Radio and Its Effectiveness
1.19: Assessing Community Radio’s effectiveness
1.20: Rationale of the Study
1.21: Need for the Study
1.22: Overview of the Study
1.23: Genesis of the Problem
1.24: The aim:
1.25: Objectives
1.26: Research Questions

Chapter 2: LITERATURE REVIEW

2.1: Importance of review of literature
2.2: Plan of review of literature
2.3: Literature review related to research work conducted in India
2.4: Research studies related to Community Radio in India
2.5: Research articles related to Community Radio in India
2.6: General articles related to Community Radio
2.7: Research Studies related to Community Radio conducted abroad.
2.8: Articles related to Community Radio by the foreign writers
2.9: Some important research work related to community radio conducted abroad
2.10: An open letter for Community Radio to the Prime Minister of UK
2.11: How was the review useful?

Chapter 3: THEORETICAL FRAME WORK

3.1: Diffusion of Innovation Approach and Development
3.2: The Diffusion of Innovations Model: Media and Development
3.3: Concept of Mass Media as a Magic Multiplier
3.4: Dependency Theory of Media and Development
3.6: Development Communication: An approach to Modernization
3.7: Development Communication and Community Radio
3.8: Development Communication and development of the grassroots people.
3.9: Community Radio and Participatory Communication for Social Change

Chapter 4: METHODOLOGY

4.1: The aim
4.2: Objectives
4.3: Research Questions
4.4: Research Design
4.5: Quantitative Research Method
4.6: Qualitative Research Vs Quantitative Research
4.7: Qualitative Research Method
4.8: Population and sampling
4.9: Population
4.10: Sample
4.11: Sampling method
4.12: Procedure to select samples
4.14: Data collection design
4.15: Data Collection
4.16: Data analysis design
4.17: Schedule of Activities
4.18: The Limitations
Chapter 5: DATA ANALYSIS AND INTERPRETATION

5.1: Jnan Taranga CRS, Guwahati
5.2: Gurgaon Ki Awaaz Samudayik Radio, Gurgaon
5.3: CMS Community Radio, Lucknow
5.4: Radio Bundelkhand, Orcha
5.5: Overall assessment
5.6: Data Analysis and Findings

Chapter 6: FINDINGS AND CONCLUSION

6.1: Introduction
6.2: Community Radio the Asian Context
6.3: Community Radio the Asian Context
6.4: Original Target Group is bypassed by CR Policy
6.5: Lack of Awareness Among the Target Groups
6.6: Lack of Participation of Target Groups in CRs
6.7: No News & Current Affairs for CRs in India
6.8: Revenue for CRs Sustenance
6.9: Community radio for NGOs
6.10: Possible Solutions
6.11: Reflecting a World View of Community Members
6.12: Development and Community Radio
6.13: Conclusion
6.14: Suggestions
6.15: Limitations

Bibliography

Annexure - I
Annexure - II
Annexure - III