ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

The ancient Indian culture very truly describes my feelings of respect and admiration towards my revered Guru and research Guide Dr. Ankur Saxena, whose valuable support, guidance and direction was a constant source of inspiration and motivation in completing this endeavour. I am highly obliged and grateful to him for the insights and the suggestions that he has provided to me right from the conception to the successful completion of the thesis.

I express my gratitude to all those who spared their precious time to provide me the information responding to the Questionnaire and Focussed Group Discussion. This has helped me to gain practical insights into various important issues related to the study. I am also thankful to the librarian and other staff of different libraries that I visited for data collection during the literature survey.

I offer my deep gratitude to Dr. Shivani Mishra, Department of Social Work, Sardar Patel University and all the authorities at the institutes that I have been associated with who provided me an environment and instilled a work culture at the institute that inspired me to learn and improve.

A special and sincere gratefulness to my parents, the roots of my success lie in their upbringing and nurtured me to face the challenges presented by life and meet success. A very special gratefulness is offered to my brother Dr. Vaibhav Bharwad who has been a constant source of inspiration for the entire research. I am indebted to my Husband and my Family who have always taught me to strive constantly to be successful in all the walks of life.

I am also thankful to all my family members and friends who extended a helping hand during the research study. At the last, but not the least I am grateful to all those people who directly or indirectly helped me during the research study and successful completion of the thesis.

Ms. Dhruvi Bharwad
