ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

First and foremost, I would like to thank my Ph.D. supervisor Professor M. R. Narayana for giving me all the freedom in following my own research interest and being always accessible and generous in listening and commenting on my research ideas, doubts and plan. I remember with gratitude how he used to read line by line and give comments on each and every line of my research handouts which undoubtedly helped me articulate my ideas in my own language and style. He has been the best thesis supervisor I have wished for. Without his constant guidance, inspiration, valuable comments and suggestions, it would not have been possible for me to make a beginning, and complete the thesis in time. I am proud to have had him as my supervisor and it shall be my future endeavor to substantiate the confidence he reposed in me, and the noble efforts he put in to mould me as a researcher.

Second, I am very much thankful to my Doctoral Committee members Prof. Meenakshi Rajeev, Dr. Veerasekharappa, Dr. Krishna Raj; and Panel member, Dr. Elumalai Kannan for their valuable comments and ideas that have significantly contributed for refining this thesis to its present shape. Thanks to their in-depth knowledge in the area, way they have always managed to point out the weakness in my research ideas and loose ends in my presentation. I gratefully acknowledge their timely help. I recall how, whenever any of them missed my progress review meetings, they used to call me personally and give me their valuable comments. I place on record my respect and reverence for all of them, and my hope that I will be able to think more critically and achieve better research output in future.

I thank Mrs. B P Vani, Prof. Madheswaran, Prof. K. S. James, Dr. Sunil Nautiyal, Dr. Dhananjay Bansod and other ISEC faculty members for their kind help and research discussion whenever I needed it.

I gratefully acknowledge and place on record my special thanks to Prof. R. S. Deshpande, Director, Institute for social and Economic Change, for his academic and administrative support to pursue my research in this Institution, without which I would not have succeeded in my efforts.
I also feel very privileged to have had discussions my research ideas and thoughts with Prof. Joseph Stiglitz, Prof. John Nash, Prof. Laurent Bach, Prof. Arne Melchior, Prof. Gilles Duranton, Prof. J. V. Henderson, Prof. K. L. Krishna, Prof. Nuno Carlos Leitão, Prof. Federica Sbergami, Prof. David Roodman, Prof. Rupa Chnada, Prof. Kala Sitaram Sridhar, and Prof. N.R.B Murthy. Their comments and suggestions have gone a long way in making my research work meaningful. I would also like to thank Prof. Abdelkrim Araar for his comments and suggestions by way of elucidating the link between inequality and poverty, as also for his kind permission to use the Distributive Analysis Stata Package (DASP) for the empirical estimation.

I sincerely express my gratefulness to the Indian Council of Social Science Research for providing me the research fellowship and the opportunity to pursue my doctoral studies in ISEC.

I also place on record the valuable assistance I received from Col. C M Uthaiah, Registrar of ISEC; Mr. R Ravi Chander, Account Officer of ISEC; Ms. J Vimla, Mr. B H Chandrashekara and Mr. Sathish Kamath for their kind help. I also thank Dr. Prakash, Mrs. K Leela, Mr. Kalyanappa, Mr. K Venkatesh, Mr. S Ranjanna and Mr. Narasamaiah, dedicated and conscientious staff members of ISEC Library.

I thank to my earlier teachers, Prof. Joyasree Roy, Prof. Rajat Acharyya, Mr. Sudha Krishna Das, Mr. Tanmoy Gosh, Mr. Nikhil Ranjan Mohapatra, Mr. Bisnupada Sahu, Mr. Nirmelendu Mohapatra, Mr. Tapan Kumar Dandapat, Mr. Abdul Hi Mallick, Mr. Kamolesh Mohapatra, Mr. Manoj Mohapatra, and Mrs. Sukla Mondal for their inspiration and encouragement to decide me and pursue a career in research.

I am very much grateful to my colleagues; Mainak, Sabuj, Jagannath, Satya, Biplab, Suvendu, Rajdeep, Manojit, Soumitra, Indrajit, Amrita, Krsuhna, Jajati, Shayam, Prassanna, Shreyasi, Emmanuel, Nagesh, Krishnanu, Ayanandu, Avishek, Architesh, Baishali, Kaushik, Sandhya, Avinandan, Priya, Angan, Minakshi, Tulika, Moumita, Tarun, Pooja, Krishnanu, Amit, Subhashree, Mini, Sumedha, Lavanya, and others for their help during my stay in ISEC hostel as also for their valuable research discussions.
I thank to participants of the 4th Lindau Nobel Laureate Meeting on Economic Science (held in Germany), 8th GLOBELICS International Conference (held in Kuala Lumpur), DIMETIC session 3 (held in The Netherlands), DIMETIC session 2 (held in Hungary), 2009 IEA GHG International Interdisciplinary CCS Summer School (held in Australia), UNCTAD Training Programme (held in Kolkata), and conference on Urban Development (held in ISEC) for their constructive comments on my research presentations and discussions.

Finally, I sincerely thank Shri P Ramachandran and Mr. K.S. Narayana for their kind help and co-operation in editing my thesis, as also Shri Jagadish for organizing this thesis in a more presentable form. Finally, I thank all the numerous others who have helped me directly and indirectly in my efforts to complete and present this thesis, which include names and which I must have inadvertently missed to include.