ACKNOWLEDGMENT

Rural development, when viewed in all its perspective, seems to be still in the phase of experimentation in our state. Rural development schemes had lent a new emphasis to social education and hence the investigator has studied, what programmes of rural development under social education scheme are running in the rural areas of Madhya Pradesh and what are their achievements in relation to various aspects of rural development.

The investigator records his deep sense of gratitude to his revered teacher, Dr. Atmanand Misra, Prof. and Head of Education Department, and the Dean, faculty of Education University of Sagar, to whom he owes all that he knows in the field of research. He gave him affectionate inspirations and constant encouragement despite of his multitudious engagements and has been largely responsible for the deep interest in the problem. The investigator has no hesitation in saying that without his able and expert guidance this work might have not seen the light of the day.

The author greatly acknowledge the abundant help and constant support given by the Panchayat and social welfare department, Government of Madhya Pradesh.
He expresses his special thanks to Shri G.L. Shukla, I.A.S., Secretary Panchayat and Social Welfare Department, Government of Madhya Pradesh, whose encouragement and support he has deeply appreciated.

Heartful gratitude is also expressed to all the District Panchayat and Welfare Officers of Madhya Pradesh for their fullest co-operation and the pains they have taken in providing the required information for the successful completion of this project.

His sincere thanks are due to his generous colleague, Prof. H.P. Khare for his helpful comments and assistance in completing this work.

Thanks are also due to many social education workers and friends who directly or indirectly helped the investigator in his research work.

The Investigator
