

Acknowledgement

In the completion of the present study, I sought the assistance, guidance and support from a number of people to whom I would like to express my deep gratitude.

First and foremost, my sincere gratitude goes to Dr. Kamlesh Gakhar, for accepting to be my supervisor in this research. Dr. Kamlesh offered her unreserved help and guidance and led me to finish my thesis step by step. Without her kind and patient instructions, it would have been impossible for me to complete the thesis. I profoundly thank her for not only guiding me through this untiring journey of writing the report but for also correcting and editing my thesis. Through her eyes I saw my research come alive. I have been extremely lucky to have a supervisor who cared so much about my work, and who responded to my questions and queries so promptly. I will always remain proud to be her first research scholar.

I am most beholden to my co-supervisor, Dr R C Sharma, for being the first one to have faith in me and my capabilities and motivate me to get enrolled in this life time achievement process. I am privileged to have worked under his auspices and look forward to seeking his blessings throughout my life.

I am most grateful to the Institute of Management Studies and Research (IMSAR), Maharshi Dayanand University (MDU), Rohtak, for giving me the opportunity to undertake this research under its aegis.

I would like to appreciate and acknowledge the guidance and support extended by Dr Neelam Jain, Dr Neeraj Kaushik, Dr Sanjay Nandal, Dr Pradeep Ahlawat, Mr Bajaj, Dr Sanjiv Mittal, Prof Nittana and Prof Lai Wan Hooi. The directions provided by these eminent people have made the thesis seen uncomplicated.

I am also thankful to the management of Airtel, BSNL, MTNL, and Aircel, for helping me complete my work.

I am indebted beyond words to my father-in-law, Sh M L Dhingra and mother-in-law, Smt. Dayawanti Dhingra for bearing with my shortcomings in relating to them during this research, especially during the field work times that were afflicted with much delay. I am blessed for having such a caring and loving family that supported me unconditionally.

Taking over this tedious job was an inspiration from my mother, Manju Lamba. I am so thankful to the Almighty, for choosing her to be my earthly navigator. Through the years as I grew from her little girl into the person I am today, she has always been there with words of encouragement, guidance and support. Not even a single day had gone from the day of my enrolment that I haven't received a phone call from her, persuading me to complete the task I have undertaken. I love to admit that her phone calls were great motivation to finish the research.

I would also like to thank the following persons for providing me a warm nudging friendship and inducing an element of fun during my journey: Chintan, Hemang, Sidharth, Chirag, Mudit, Nishtha and Ashok Arora. I am grateful to Sakshi and Nimisha, who squeezed time from their busy schedule and helped me finish my report.

My acknowledgement would not be complete without expressing huge amount of gratitude to my closest friend, Ashwani. Though not much related to my field of research, he has always been very giving of his time. He used to patiently listen to the progress of my thesis and provided his inputs to the best of his knowledge. Thanks to him for being a great reliable person to whom I could always talk about my problems and excitements. His unwavering faith in my abilities has helped me get back on my feet every time I stumbled.

Last, but not the least, I would like to acknowledge my three-year-old son, Vivaan. While taking care of him made things a little challenging, his presence has provided so much joy and meaning to this entire journey of mine. It amuses me to see the puzzled and excited look on his face when his little mind tries to figure out that his mommy still needs to go to college.

It is well said that “under your own management” is the key to the very individual nature of doctoral education. The responsibility for carrying it out remains firmly with the researcher himself. I very well take solace in the final words that “No book, no author, no expert—no one else can solve your problems. They are yours. You have to get rid of them” (Becker, 1986; Bose, 2012).
