4.8 Taxation of Foreign Institutional Investment

Gains made from investment in Indian securities are the primary and the most significant item of income for FIIs. Historically, FIIs have offered their income from transactions in Indian securities to tax as capital gains under the tax regime prescribed for FIIs under section 155-AD of the Income-tax Act 1961, under the special tax regime, capital gains made by FIIs were taxed at the base tax rates mentioned below:

- Long term capital gains – 10%
- Short term capital gains – 30%
- Gains characterized as business profits – 40% for corporate entities (30% for non-corporate entities)

A new regime of taxing capital gains was introduced in October 2004. Under this regime transaction in equity shares and derivatives (both stock and index-linked) affected on a recognized stock exchange and redemption of units of equity-oriented mutual funds are subject to securities transaction tax (STT) at the present rates. Under the new tax regime, capital gain earned from transactions in equity shares and units of equity-oriented funds chargeable of STT are taxed as under:

- Long term capital gains – Exempt (earlier taxed at 10% for FIIs)
- Short term capital gains – 10% (earlier taxed at 30% for FIIs)

Gains if any, in respect of transactions in equity shares (which are not effected on a recognized stock exchange), debt securities, non-equity oriented funds and derivatives (through transactions in derivatives are subject to STT) continue to be subject to tax at the rates mentioned in the Special tax regime as mentioned above.
The above capital gains tax rates are subject to relief that may be available to an FII under tax treaties that Indian has entered into with other countries where the FII is a tax resident.

4.9 Major Progress Concerning Policy toward FIIs

Until 1980s, Indian development strategy was focused on self-reliance and import-substitutions. Current account deficit were financed largely through debt flows and official development assistance. There was a general disinclination towards foreign investment or private commercial flows. Since the initiation of the reform process in the early 1990s, however India’s policy stance has changed substantially, with a focus on harnessing the growing global foreign direct investment and portfolio investment. The broad approach reform in the external sector after the Gulf crisis was delineated in the report of high-level committee on the balance of payment (Chairman: C. Ranagarajan). It recommended, inter alia, a compositional shift in capital flows away from debt to non-debt creating flows; strict regulation of external commercial borrowings, especially short-term debt; discouraging volatile elements of flows from Non-resident (NRIs); gradual liberalization of outflows and disinter mediation of Government in the flows of external assistance.

The Evolution of FII policy in India has displayed a steady and cautious approach to liberalization of a system of quantitative restrictions, which can be studied by table 4.2.

The policy liberalization has taken the form of (i) relaxation of investment limits for FIIs (ii) relaxation of eligibility conditions and (iii) liberalization of investment instruments accessible for FIIs. In so far as investment limits are concerned, the initial limits for an individual FII was 5 percent of the total issued capital. This was raised to 10 percent in June 1998 and the ceiling for all FIIs was 24 percent of the issued and paid up capital in a company. However, this was allowed to be increased subject to passing of resolutions by the Board of the Director of the company, followed passing of a special resolution by the General Body of the company. The ceiling limit under special procedure was enhanced in stages as follows:

(I) To 30 percent from April 4, 1997,
(II) To 40 percent from March 1, 2000,
(III) To 49 percent from March 8, 2001,
(IV) To sectoral cap/statutory ceiling from September 20, 2001.

India, being a capital scarce country, has taken many measures to attract foreign investment since the beginning of reforms in 1991. Up to the end of December 2005, India succeeded in attracting a total foreign investment of around U.S.$10,248 billion. India is in the process of liberalizing its capital account, and this has a significant impact on foreign investment and particularly on FII, which affects short-term stability in the financial markets. As study has described the push and pull factors behind any change in the FII but this is a matter of research that these applicable factor are also actively working in a Indian scenario or some other factors are there which affects the arrival of FIIs and which factor is most important. Some another questions also arise i.e. Are FIIs creating the same effect on the Indian economy as stated in the beginning? Are FIIs responsible for the higher return or higher return is attracting FIIs? Indian market is facing the high volatility these days. Is this due to the FIIs or some other reasons? In this way there are a lot of questions regarding the Determinants and Effect of FIIs in the Indian market, which is a matter of great research.
