PREFACE

Both medical and psychological factors have an important impact upon the psychosocial functioning of people with epilepsy. The key purpose of this thesis was to study the psychosocial factors underlying epilepsy and the effect of Jacobson’s Progressive Muscle Relaxation on Intractable seizures.

I will be forever grateful for the unceasing support and encouragement of my supervisor, Dr. Promila Batra, Prof. of Psychology, M.D. University, Rohtak, who provided wise advice, astute judgment and thorough appraisal at each stage of my candidature. She stood beside at each step of data collection and thesis writing.

I would also like to thank Prof. Rajbir Singh and Prof. (Mrs.) Sunita Malhotra, who have been the Head, Department of Psychology, M.D. University, Rohtak, during the work their affectionate words and sympathetic support all through the course of this study. I am also grateful to all other teaching and non-teaching staff of Psychology Department, M.D. University, Rohtak.

It would have not been possible without the permission of Dr. Rajeev Gupta, Head, Department of Psychiatry, PGIMS, Rohtak, to carry out the study. I am thankful to Dr. Sujata Sethi, Dr. Harish, Dr. Amit Sethi and all other staff members of Department of Psychiatry for providing me full support in data collection.

My thanks are for Dr. Ishwar Singh, Head, Department of Neurosurgery, PGIMS, Rohtak, Dr. Vineet for providing me full support in data collection.
I am indebted to all the patients who participated in the study for their kind cooperation and help without which the study would not have been completed. It is not very easy to continue for one full month especially when they have to come to receive relaxation after a long traveling.

My thanks are for Dr. Satish Malik, the Librarian, Central Library, and other library staff for making library facilities available, as well as to the Librarian, National Medical Library and D.U. Library, Delhi.

My wonderful family has supported me in every possible way throughout the long process of creating this thesis. I could not have done this without my father and mother and my sister Apurva.

My thanks are for Mr. Sunil and Ms. Garima who were generous in their support of my goal to finish this course of work as soon as possible.

Completing a thesis would not be possible without friends. Thank you Promila, Afsareen, Priyanka, Manish, Renu, Ms. Savita, Mr. Anirudh and Mrs. Nitu, Mr. Jasvir, Mr. Ajay Tayal, Poonam and Neha for timely help in the completion of this study.

Finally, I would like to thank God, without whom nothing would be possible.
