ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

This study owes its completion to the sincere and unstinted cooperation extended to me by many persons.

I am specially grateful to my research guide Dr. V.J. Kochuthresia, Professor, Department of Social Work, Rajagiri College of Social Sciences, for her constant supervision and guidance and valuable suggestions during the course of my research without which the research would not have become a reality.

I am greatly indebted to Fr. Jose Alex, former Principal and Dr. Fr. Antony Kariyil, Principal of Rajagiri College of Social Sciences, for their valuable advice and the moral encouragement that they constantly bestowed.

I offer my sincere thanks to Mr. M. Kannan, the faculty member of Madurai Institute of Social Sciences for having facilitated the computer analysis of the collected data and for giving me his expert comments, which went a long way in improving the analysis and interpretation of the data collected.

I also wish to acknowledge the valuable contributions, suggestions and practical hints given by Dr. K.A. Mathew, Dr. Sebastian Mampilly, Mr. M.D. Thomas and the faculty members of Rajagiri College of Social Sciences.

I would like to express my special appreciation to Miss. Jasmine Mathew and Miss. Sheeba Varghese for their continuous help to complete this study.

I thankfully remember the Directors and Co-ordinators of the voluntary organizations for their co-operation and support and for providing me with the data required for this research.
