ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

Working on a Ph. D. thesis is a mountainous task. Although the end product is formally credited to the author, it is the cumulative outcome of efforts of those who are involved in the process right from the day one of inception of the idea. Therefore I take this opportunity to acknowledge and appreciate those who directly or indirectly rendered their support to accomplish the task in time.

First and foremost, I extend a spirited thank-you to my guide, Prof. G.G. Wankhede for all of his wisdom, support, encouragement and expert advice. Since the first meeting with Sir I am witness of his selfless involvement in the development of his students. I am privileged to have his parental and scholarly guidance on each stage of thesis as well as the career.

I also thank my Doctoral Advisory Committee members Prof. Sharit Bhowmik and Prof. Arvind Tiwari for their valuable suggestions to improve upon the proposal and the thesis. Prof. Jayram is always an inspiration for me with his expertise as a discussant during my proposal presentation as well as presentation of synopsis.

I am very much thankful to Dr. Saxena and Dr. Anil Sutar for the knowledge of the Research Methodology they shared during research methodology classes. My gratitude also goes to research scholars at TISS for their sharing of ideas and extending motivation to me throughout the preparation of thesis.

I am grateful to the librarian Dr. Muttayya Koganuramath and dedicated staff of the TISS library for their ever ready spirit to help the research scholars. My special thanks to Mr. Sharad Kale from the computer section of TISS whose help in data analysis with SPSS was crucial to handle the complicated task of data analysis. I am very much thankful to all the staff of Ph. D. section Ms. Kamble, Ms. Vidya and others for their valuable support.

I am extremely grateful to my teacher colleagues at Ramnarain Ruia College, Mumbai for their support in terms of adjustment of work load to make me free to attend my Research Methodology classes in the institute. I am very much thankful to Dr. Chhaya Bakane, the then head of the Department of Political Science, Ruia College for the inspiration and support she rendered to me. Equally important is the cooperation of Prof. Prashant Kelkar, Head of the Department of Political Science, Dr. Milind Vaidya, retired Principal and Dr. Samuel Wesley at Smt. CHM College Ulhasnagar who went beyond the borders and supported me during very difficult times during the course of my thesis work as well as professional career. Help of Dr. Pratima Das and Dr Deepa Mishra have been equally fruitful.

Data collection for the thesis was very interesting although cumbersome task. Many individuals helped to make the task achievable. I am very much thankful to Mr. Sandip Hire, Prof. Pravin Bagul, Mr. Gautam Sable, a Municipal Corporator of Chembur ward, his associate Rajiv Gegde, Mr. Sunil Kadam for facilitating my data collection in Chembur ward. Mr. Rajesh Pawar who is my childhood friend and Mr. Raju Gaikwad, a teacher in Worli School helped me to reach to the respondents in Worli B.D.D. Chawl area. I am immensely indebted to all the respondents for their cooperation they extended to me. Their patient responses and sympathetic reception of my work kept me going.

I wish to send a heartfelt thanks to my wife, Vijayshila for her companionship during very difficult time who along with me bore all the laborious pains of my thesis and always supported me with her expertise in English language. With her cheerful smile and innocent antiques my daughter Shourya always kept the spirit of work alive within me.

And finally there is a very special space to my parents and family who spend their life in dreaming of their son holding doctorate in the convocation hall, following the words of Dr. Ambedkar ‘to illumine the lives with education.’

Chandrasheel B. Tambe