ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

I would like to record my indebtedness to the good wishes, guidance, encouragement and help, received from many individuals in the completion of the present work. The study has been carried out under the supervision of Prof. K.K. Subrahmanian. It is difficult to express adequately my feelings in words for the consistent encouragement, constructive criticisms and valuable suggestions that he gave and the painstaking efforts that he undertook in shaping the study in the present form. Often I was immature in ideas and lacked logical consistency but his command over economic logic and deep understanding of the subject saved me from undergoing the unavoidable frustrations. I owe my sincere regards and feel extremely grateful.

I must acknowledge my thanks to the Sardar Patel Institute of Economic and Social Research for providing all academic and administrative supports. Prof. Y.K. Alagh, the Director, provided all facilities required for the work. Prof. S.P. Kashyap was always kind to lend invaluable support at various stages of the study. Prof. G.V.S.N. Murty helped in analysing constant Market Share Model. I was immensely benefitted from valuable discussions with him. Prof. M.S. Trivedi helped me in clarifying some theoretical issues. Dr. Rohit Desai, a friend of mine, encouraged me all throughout in overcoming various problems. Dr. D.R. Veena rendered valuable help at various stages of the work. Shri N.C. Shah and Shri Y.V. Pantulu helped in data processing and computer programming. Shri Narendrakumar, Shri Dilip Parikh, Shri Amrish Vora, Mrs. Hemangini Shah, Miss Chetan Trivedi, Shri Surjit Singh Sandhu, Shri Anil Kumar, Shri Keval Ram and Shri Kanubhai Raval helped me wholeheartedly. I thank them all for their valuable supports.

I also received full support from the Library and Secretarial staff of the Institute. I am particularly thankful to Shri K.P. Satheesan, Shri T. Prabhakaran and Shri B.J. Trivedi for efficiently typing the manuscript.

Outside the Institute, I express my deep sense of gratitude to Prof. Maheshchand, Department of Economics, Allahabad University. His constant inspiration helped me in a great deal in completing the work. Shri V.P. Bharadwaj, School of Social Sciences, Gujarat University, provided invaluable supports at various stages.

Last but not the least, I owe my sincere regards to my parents and to my wife for bearing with my hardships.

March 23, 1982
R.S. Tiwari