ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

My sincere thanks to a number of people who helped in the completion of this research.

First of all, I would like to extend my heart-felt gratitude to my research guide Dr. (Mrs.) K. V. Indulekha, M.Sc., Ph.D., without whose valuable, timely, and sustained assistance this dissertation would not have been possible.

My thanks to Rev. (Sr.) Emeline, Principal, St. Teresa’s College, Ernakulam, for granting me permission and support for doing the work. My sincere thanks to Mrs. Georgiana Verghese, Department of Home Science, St. Teresa’s College and all my colleagues in the department.

I express my deep gratitude to all school authorities who gave permission and assistance to conduct the study. My thanks also to many students of various schools and their parents for their co-operation while collecting the data. My thanks to all the librarians of many libraries especially, University Library, Trivandrum; University Library, Calicut; University Library, and Connemara Library, Madras; National Information Centre, SNDT Women’s Library, Bombay; and Trinity College Library, Dublin, Ireland.

My thanks to Dr. Immanuel Thomas, Lecturer, Department of Psychology, University of Kerala, Trivandrum, for his assistance in the computerised statistical analysis of the research data and for giving permission to use the Self-esteem Inventory.
I am deeply indebted to my father, Dr. M. J. Sebastian, who inspired me, and my mother, Mrs. Kochuthresia Sebastian and my sisters for all their support and prayers.

My heart-felt thanks to Mathew, my husband for his constant support and encouragement at all times, and without whom I could never have completed this research work.

I am dedicating the study to my children, Sneha Liz Mathew and Sebastian John Mathew. They adjusted a lot with my work for the past many years. I admit that even after knowing their psychology, there were times when I could not devote myself fully to them.

To all the above people and many others who helped me in many ways in the completion of this investigation, I will always be thankful.
