ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

“None is more impoverished than the one who has no gratitude. Gratitude is a currency that we can mint ourselves, and spend without fear of bankruptcy.”

- Fred De Witt Van Amburgh

First and foremost I am grateful to Almighty God for His grace and blessings throughout the study.

I am highly obliged to the Vice Chancellor, Sri Ramachandra University, Porur, Chennai for permitting me to pursue the Doctor of Philosophy in Nursing. I am also grateful to the Dean of Faculties Sri Ramachandra University, Porur, Chennai, for an opportunity extended to me to take up the study.

The present study has been undertaken and completed under the inspiring and valuable guidance and supervision of Dr. Nagarajaiah, Associate Professor, Department of Nursing, NIMHANS, Bangalore, Karnataka. I express my deep sense of gratitude for his expert guidance, and valuable suggestions.

I am deeply indebted to my Co-guide Dr. J. S. N. Murthy, Professor, Department of Cardiology, Sri Ramachandra University, Porur, Chennai, for his expert and invaluable guidance. His energizing and encouraging words only prompted me to go on with this endeavor. Without his worthwhile support this study would have been half baked.

I should not forget, (Late) Dr. Vijayalakshmi Nirmal Kamath, Professor, Department of Anesthesia, who was my Co-Guide at the beginning of the study at Sri Ramachandra University, Porur, Chennai. She worked industriously to help me grow. Despite her hectic schedule, she was always available to guide me and correct me. Although she is no longer with us, she will be forever remembered.
I owe my most sincere gratitude to Dr. C. Ramesh, Professor and H.O.D, Department of Biostatistics and Epidemiology, Kidwai Memorial Institute of Oncology, Bangalore, as an Advisory Committee Member for his detailed review and excellent advice during the study.

My heart felt thanks to Mr. H. Surrendra, Associate Professor, Department of Statistics, Gandhi Krushi Vijnana Kendra, Bangalore for his valuable guidance and suggestions.

My heartfelt thanks to Prof. P.V. Ramachandran, Dean of Nursing and Dr. Rajalkshmi Vaidyanathan, Principal, Sri Ramachandra College of Nursing, Porur, Chennai for their support.

I express my gratitude to all the experts who validated the tool and the structured teaching programme, and gave their valuable guidance and suggestions.

I am deeply indebted to Prof. Esther Shirley Daniel, General Secretary, Society of Community Health Nurses of India (SOCHNI), whose help and suggestions helped me in this thesis.

I wish to express my warm and sincere thanks to Management of Kempegowda Institute of Medical Sciences Hospital and Research Center, Bangalore, who gave me the opportunity to conduct the research in their Institution and provided me the congenial atmosphere to collect data and gave me untiring help during my study.

I am grateful to the all my subjects who cooperated during my data collection, administering structured teaching programme, as well as for extending their co-operation during home visit for Post-test. Without them I wouldn’t have been able to complete the study.
I am extremely thankful to Mrs. Sharada Venkataraman, certified English trainer for IELTS & TOEFL, for editing this manuscript. A word of appreciation to Web Joint for skillful word processing and graphic presentation of the manuscript.

My deepest gratitude goes to my wife, Mrs. Jyothi Nanjunde Gowda, lecturer Ikon Nursing College Bangalore, for her unflagging love and support throughout my life. This study would have been simply impossible without her. I am indebted to my wife for her care and love.

The episode of acknowledgement would not be complete without the mention of my dear daughter, Mrs. Sapna and my son-in-law Mr. Rajeev for their inspiration and moral support.

Finally, I would like to thank all those whose direct and indirect support helped me to complete my thesis.
