Acknowledgments

Acknowledgments are customary in offering an academic dissertation. In my case, they are more than customary. This ambitious academic work I took up at my age raised quite a few eyebrows, including my wife's. She never tired of calling it an exercise in futility, if not insanity. That I could complete the work despite heavy odds is entirely due to the stimulating company, and most inspiring guidance of my esteemed professor, Dr. Udai Pareek. He urged me, like a guardian angel, to go ahead when I felt depressed, and counselled patience and restraint when I got restive. He showed me the path, gave me full freedom in work and lavished his precious time on me. It is a debt which can never be repaid.

I am also grateful to other professors of the Indian Institute of Management, Ahmedabad, for their valuable advices, particularly Dr. T.V. Rao, Dr. S.N. Chattopadhyay, Dr. D.M. Pestonjee, Dr. P.N. Khandwalla and Dr. T.K. Moulik. Dr. Chattopadhyay, although presently engaged elsewhere, enquired off and on about the progress of the work. It helped sustain my interest in no small way.

I owe a heavy debt of gratitude to all my friends and colleagues who supported and encouraged the venture. Especially, I record my deep appreciation of the willing, unreserved and ever-ready assistance received from Sarvshri R.M. Shah, D.R. Chalisghar, B.C. Roopchandani, M.D. Punjabi, K.V. Dave, A.M. Sheth and Smt. Suman A. Shah in data collection and connected matters. Shri J.C. Golwala helped me throughout in data collection and procuring relevant materials and literature, for which I am most thankful to him.

I am sure no words would be adequate to express my gratitude to Sarvshri A.I. Mansuri, J.J. Bunker, P.N. Sasidharan, S.J. Desai, P.J. Varghese and Miss Lissy Jacob for their help in typing the manuscripts and the final thesis. Their contribution, and the way they came forward eagerly to see the work through on schedule will always be fondly remembered by me.

About the academic part, my elder daughter, Reena, shared my toils by sorting out my library readings and making abstracts, etc. This, in addition to her own studies. I am greatly indebted to Shri Narendra Dixit, Dr. Mahendra Singhvi, Sarvshri Kaushal Kishore Keshode, Dalpat Sarupriaya, and Kum. Kirtida Surti for their useful suggestions and help in analysis of the data and compilation of tables. My thanks are also due to Kum. Geeta Raval and Smt. Premlata Sarupriaya, who did the spadework for computerising the data.

On the domestic front, I could not have carried on with the study without my wife's co-operation. Her none-too-charitable remarks notwithstanding about it, she gave me silent, but solid support. And my younger daughter, Radha, wondered why her father had chosen to go in again for a distasteful thing like studying. She often asked me if I was punished by my 'teacher' for not doing my 'lessons' properly. Such tit-bits enlivened my arduous task.

I most sincerely thank my authorities for permitting me to undertake the research, and the Banks concerned for permission to study their organisations. I also gratefully acknowledge the spontaneous co-operation of the respondents. Sarvshri R.J. Jani and L.R. Mehta took personal interest in speedy completion of the duplicating and printing work. I appreciate their efficient services.
