ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

The task fulfilled here in the forthcoming pages is a dream come true in every sense. Every single colour is attributed to one or the other person or institution. I owe to them much more than words. Yet the highest contribution has been from Dr. Y.F. Patel, my guide in this research, who, with her affectionate approach, learned mind and sympathetic attitude combined all colours and helped me create a full-fledged canvas.

This work would not have shined out in true sense but for the invaluable help and guidance of Dr. D.N. Sansanwal, Professor of Education, DAVV, Indore. Even a few drops from the ocean of his vast knowledge and experience have enriched my work to an indescribable satisfaction. Whenever I approached him with some problem, either personally or through correspondence, he was instantly responsive and obliging.

The experiment was the heart of this research. The principals and the teachers of Ankur School, Ahmedabad and Diwan Ballubhai Madhyamik Shala (Paldi Branch), Ahmedabad, pumped life into my major task of carrying out the experiment with their willing cooperation. Equal appreciation is also for my young friends who underwent the course and/or the test with great enthusiasm and profound faith.

I have had the benefit of discussion with some experts. I remember with respect the names of Prof. (Dr.) B.K. Passi, Prof. (Dr.) L.C. Singh, Dr. S.P. Malhotra and Dr. U.G. Chitrit. I express my gratitude to them for their valuable suggestions. I am indebted to Prof. (Dr.) J.H. Shah, School of Education, Ahmedabad and Dr. D.S. Shukla, Principal, M.N. Shukla College of Education, Ahmedabad, for permitting me to attend the orientation courses on Models of Teaching held at their institutions. I owe gratitude to the members and the students of School of Education, DAVV, Indore, for providing me all kinds of help during my stay there.

I am indebted to the panel of experts and the teachers who helped me in the construction and refinement of the measurement instruments. My thanks are due to Dr. R.P. Soni, Director, Rollwala Computer Center, Ahmedabad, for allowing me to get the data processed at the center.

I sincerely acknowledge my gratitude to the authors whose creations I have used.

I wish to express a feeling of gratitude to my superiors and colleagues at G.B. Shah Jyoti Higher Secondary School, Ahmedabad, for providing me facilities and motivation. I am grateful to all those who had kindly helped me at every crucial moment. I thank
Mr. Khilan Patel and Mr. K.H. Oza who put up with a lot of inconvenience in carrying out the typing of this report.

I owe my family a lot. I record my appreciation for my dear father, my family members and friends for their selfless love and for the moral and material support they have extended to me. I have to remember the children but for whose actively passive submission this task could not have been completed in due time.
