ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

My deepest debt of gratitude is due to my teacher and guide Professor K.D. BAJPAI, Head of the Department of Ancient Indian History, Culture and Archaeology and Tagore Professor, University of Saugar. Without his limitless and untiring zeal, enthusiasm and penetrating insight, this study would never have seen the light of the day. He not only initiated me to this field but also painstakingly guided and supervised my study despite his heavy and hectic schedule of engagements spread over the entire length and breadth of the country. It is he, who made my mind objective and scientific and, with his masterly knowledge, enabled me to solve complex historical riddles. In fact, the words elude me that would appropriately convey my feelings to him. I am greatly obliged to Mr. H.S. SENGAR, Librarian, Jawaharlal Nehru Library, University of Saugar and his staff who rendered me all the cooperation in completing this work on schedule. My heartiest thanks are also to Dr. G.N. Pant of National Museum, New Delhi and score of other friends and colleagues including Shri Bhagwat of the Library of Archaeological Survey of India, who extended me very valuable assistance in collecting source material in connection with this study. I am indeed highly obliged to the noted authors from whose works I have freely quoted.

I am also extremely grateful to Brigadier and Mrs. Y.P. BAKSHI, my Commander, and Col and Mrs. H.S. Chandele, whose kind indulgence, ever patronising and encouraging words made my task simpler and the experience enjoyable. My thanks are also due to L/Nk L.S. Parmar of the Army Education, Shri G.P. Rai and Wilson John of the Saugar University who, inspite of their heavy routine, helped me to produce this study in a record period. I am also grateful to other members of the staff of the Department of Ancient Indian History. Last, but not least, I will be failing in my duty if I do not express my gratitude to dear 'Kamal' my wife, inspite of whose pulling and jostlings, I was able to complete my present study.

***