ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

I deem it pleasure to acknowledge here the contribution and help rendered by many individuals and organizations in the completion of this Ph.D. Thesis.

The basic inspiration for doing Ph.D. in mind and the desire was encouraged for completion of Ph.D. thesis by Dr. K.V. Aiyanna, Professor of Development Studies, Institute of Development Studies, University of Mysore, Karnataka, India who is also my guide, for his constant guidance, advice, constructive suggestions, cooperation and encouragement without which it would not have been possible for me to bring out this thesis in time.

I want to place a record my sincere thanks to Prof. Krishnegowda, Director, Institute of Development Studies, University of Mysore.

I am very much thankful to Prof. T.M. Mahesh, Professor of Urban and Regional Planning; Prof. M. Devaraj, Professor in Agri-Business; Dr. Shankar, Associate Professor, Urban and Regional Planning and Dr. Mokshapathy, MBA Agri-Business, other faculty members, Institute of Development Studies, University of Mysore, Manasagangotri, Mysore, for their encouragement in bringing out this thesis.

I am very much thankful to all faculty members Dr. Ramakrishna, Dr. Komala, Dr. Rangaswamy, Dr. Sridhar Murthy and Dr. Ashoka Kumar. And also thankful to my research friends, Institute of Development Studies, University of Mysore, Mysore for their cooperation in bringing out this thesis successful one.

I thank all the office staff of Institute of Development Studies, University of Mysore, Manasagangotri, Mysore, for their fabulous support.
I will present this thesis to my father and mother who won’t be separated from me even after they have past away. I will also dedicate this thesis to my wife to whom I owe my academic success and to my children who are two dear flowers of my life. They bore hardship of living in India and later hardship of being away from me. I am always grateful to them, and to all my family members for their blessings.

I acknowledge with thanks to those who directly or indirectly extended their cooperation and encouragement in bringing out this thesis.
