Writing this Thesis was a process of self-realization, which not only made me a better teacher but also helped me shape my understanding about the teaching-learning activity for which my mentor, Dr J H Khan was the sole facilitator. My gratitude for him is inexpressible as it is beyond the gamut of my ability to articulate. He has been instrumental in channelizing my academic skills in the right direction to gain maximum learning experience, which in turn, helped me to critically review my work. I would like to make a special mention about the confidence that he showed in me, when he assigned me the responsibility as a CELT (an initiative of the Vice-Chancellor, which was a pilot training course for full-time MPhil and PhD students) trainer. This became the turning-point of my research work as I gained new insights about course design and student needs and decided to rework on all my chapters. I thank him for giving me this opportunity and helping me to realize my latent potential.

I would also like to thank Mr. Kalpesh Gohil, with whom I had several brainstorming sessions regarding communicative English and its implementation in actual classroom scenario, materials development, duration of language courses, needs analysis and improving employability of students.

I honestly thank Mr. Hemant Takle (technical assistant, Bhaikaka Library), who shared his valuable viewpoints on research with me on several occasions.

I would like to thank my wife, Ms. Dhanya Jinoy very lovingly for the patience she has shown in waiting for my arrival in New Zealand for months together now.

I need to thank my parents for their unquestioned love and trust in me even as research made them anxious several times. Above all, I thank the Almighty for supporting me at every juncture of my life and instilling in me a sense of purpose and perseverance in pursuing my research.
