PRIMARY SOURCES

Books

Interviews/Letters/Essays

- - -. Correspondence between Amitav Ghosh and Dipesh Chakraborty.

<http://www.amitavghosh.com/correspondence_html_indv.php?co nv_id=1>

http://www.thenational.ae/article/20090228/MAGAZINE/361645814&SearchID=73349545079457.

http://www.appomattox.demon.co.uk/acca/Reviews/ghoshinterview.html.

Secondary Sources

Books

Mishra, Binod and Sanjay Kumar Eds. Indian Writings in English. New Delhi: Atlantic Pub, 2006. Print

Articles/Reviews

Bhattacharji, Shobhana. “Amitav Ghosh’s Travel Writing: In an Antique Land and The Imam and the Indian.” Indian Literature 47.6

Bhattacharji, Shobhana. “Writer of Many Dimensions.” Rev. of The Imam and the Indian: Prose Pieces. The Book Review 26.9
(September 2002): 30-1. Print.

Biring, Jagroop S. “Colonising the mind: civilisational imperialism in Amitav Ghosh’s The Glass Palace.” The Atlantic Literary Review

Bissell, Sally. “Sea of Poppies.” Rev of Sea of Poppies. Library Journal

Unredeemability of Time In Antique Lands.” JIWE 39.1 (January

Chaudhuri, Supriya. “A Sense of Place.” Rev of The Hungry Tide. Biblio:

Choudhary, Bibhash. “Amitav Ghosh, Modernity and the Theory of the Novel.” Journal of Contemporary Thought. 28 (Winter 2008): 95-
107. Print.

Majumdar, Kinshuk. “Psychological Domination in The Glass Palace.”

“Migrant Literature.” Web. 3 November 2010.

<http://www.servinghistory.com/topics/Migrant_literature::sub::Themes_In_Migrant_Literature>

Nara, Rakhi and G.A. Ghanshyam. “Multiple Facets of Contrasting Strands of Emotions in Amitav Ghosh’s The Hungry Tide.” *Seva-Nayar, Pramod K. “The Postcolonial Uncanny; The Politics of Dispossession in Amitav Ghosh's The Hungry Tide.” *College 2010.

Neogy, Alpana. “The Partition of Bengal: A Comparative Study of Amitav Ghosh’s The Shadow Lines and Sunil Gangopadhyay’s

Pabby, D.K. “Theme of Partition and Freedom in Khushwant Singh’s
Train to Pakistan and Amitav Ghosh’s The Shadow Lines.” Ed.

Readings in the Sociology of Migration. London: Pergamon P.
1970: 49-68. Print.

Print.

