I am extremely happy to acknowledge at the outset that I am one of the fortunate scholars to have Dr. P. Moorthy as my guide and guru, to whom I am beholden for many things including for his decision to guide me in this interesting interdisciplinary area of studies. Without his invaluable guidance, meticulous supervision and generous allotment of time, space and energy even in the midst of his busy academic schedule, it is impossible to complete my thesis in this form.

I profoundly thank Dr. P. Moorthy, therefore, for his great gesture and help for successful submission of my thesis, which is devoted to every Indian who wants the country to become a prosperous, developed, corruption free and knowledge based society by getting rid of the disease of corruption.

It is my duty to extend my heartfelt thanks to Prof. P. Palanichamy, former Head of the Department of Commerce and Dr. B. Krishnamurthy, Reader in the Department for their moral support and advice as members of Doctoral Committee.

I extend my sincere gratitude to Prof. D. Sambandhan, Dean, School of Social Sciences and International Studies for his great understanding nature and optimistic outlook that gave me energy and timely encouragement. My sincere thanks are also due to Prof. B. Mohanan Pillai, Head, who had furnished me with his unique combination of academic ideas.

Also, I thank all the faculty members of the University for their support in various stages of my work. Particularly I thank Dr. Binu Zacharriya, English Department for his efficient editing work.

I am indebted to A.R. Library, Pondicherry University, Indira Gandhi Library, University of Hyderabad, JNU Library, Library of Council for Social Development, Hyderabad, especially library of Centre for Good Governance, Hyderabad for providing me necessary information.

With great pleasure, I would like to thank each and every one including my senior and junior friends of Utkal Chhatra Parishad, Pondicherry University for their understanding nature and words of encouragement that alerted me to realize the importance of my research work.
My special thanks are due to my close friend, Mr. Ramya Ranjan Mishra, Research Scholar, Department of Anthropology for his affection and care without which I could not have been in a position to do my work with peace of mind.

Words are not enough to express my grateful appreciation for my parents. It is their words of encouragement, love and faith that shaped my dreams and aspiration into reality. I also express my humble thanks to my brother (Sipu) and Sister-in-law (Sima) who always showered me with their blessings and good wishes.

I affectionately acknowledge my loving sister ‘Mama’ for her bizarre understanding nature and to Tusharkanta Raj, my brother-in-law for his extraordinary indulgent, sharing sorrow and happiness, particularly providing a laptop that imparted great help during my study.

Special thanks are also due to my naughty nieces and nephews, Situ, Sriya and Lisa for their constant encouragement during my frequent telephonic interactions with them that relieved me from mental stresses.

Above all, God is close to man and I, therefore, bestow my sincere prayer to ‘Lord Almighty’.
